MICHIGANENSIAN

NINETEEN FORTY-TWO

The success of a yearbook stems not from what it has in common with other yearbooks or publications, but from what it has extraordinary to itself. We have attempted to catch the spirit of this Michigan, this year. It is extremely difficult to record in cold type the vital, moving forces that make up any year and it has been especially difficult to do so in this year of war. History has demanded that the University produce now the leaders and technicians who must take their places in the front lines of our armies, industries, and thought. This fact, however, only gradually has become apparent to us. We of '42, in a sense, have been engulfed in a fast-flowing era of thought. Four years ago we arrived amid the halcyon ebb of pacifism and ivory-towered cynicism. Now the tide has turned and is in full flood. We have witnessed the advent of a cataclysmic conflict, which as it grew in scope and intensity has changed the entire mode of our thinking and action. The peace rallies of 1938 gave way to the several war relief drives until our concern and developing maturity led us to "The Post War Problems" conference of 1942. But this is only half of the picture, the more public half; even as we turned from the laboratories, the machine shops, and the desks to our places of recreation, we ever were made aware, by the absence of our classmates who are in the service that a full-time battle is being fought and, having become aware, we put our play to work and gave full measure of support to our "Bomber Scholarship" and to our defense stamp drives. We never could hope to record the complete history of such a climactic year. we have not attempted to do so,—but if we have in some small way conveyed a picture of the vital, growing, evolving force that is democracy, we shall have caught a picture of the year 1942.

ERLAND

For the past quarter-century one man has stood out in his continuous service on the Board in Control of Student Publications. That man, Edson Sunderland, one time member of the Michigan Daily editorial staff, has sought with rare enthusiasm and by continuous vigilance, vigor, and idealism, to establish traditions of excellence in student publications. From their advent in the back rooms of professional printing shops to their present maturity in a modern self-sustained plant, the student publications have sought to uphold these traditions.

In addition to his position on the Law school faculty, he serves the nation as an authority on legal procedure and judicial organization. As Secretary of the Board, Professor Sunderland has encouraged student initiative and the development of student talent. We of the University Student Publications are privileged to pay tribute to a man whose record is testimony to his service, Edson Read Sunderland.

REGENTS

The eleven member Board of Regents serves as a contact between the University and the state legislature. It directs expenditures as limited by legislative appropriations, and sets up the University calendar according to state requirements. Elected biennially for eight year terms, the Regents are able to command a wide perspective of the University program and thus capably perform their job as administrative heads of Michigan. The Board's ability to attack the problem at hand was recently illustrated by their efficient action on the accelerated National Defense program that they put into effect in January.

ALEXANDER G. RUTHVEN

For over a decade it has been the task of Alexander Grant Ruthven to supervise the students and faculty in their many diversified activities. Fortunately, he is a man of energy, patience, and understanding, a man who is constantly on the alert for new trends in education. Under his guidance many innovations beneficial to the University have been adopted.

His importance as administrator has never been questioned, but now, more than ever before, he has shown his real worth. The impact of war has necessitated the leadership of a man who has foresight and understanding in time of emergency. Coming forward in keeping with this principle, Dr. Ruthven has been one of the real forces behind the adoption of the new war program. The University of Michigan is indeed fortunate in having such a man at this time.

TRATION

Upon the administrators rests the responsibility for the efficient operation of the University. It is they who make it possible for Michigan's ten thousand to go through the routine of daily school life without undue interruption and confusion. In addition to this task of keeping the School's daily machinery well oiled and in smooth operation, the administrators are also faced with the problem of providing guidance for the students, exercising control over their scholastic affairs, and supervising their extra- curricular activities.

Bluebook Blues—Anthropology 101

One hundred years ago the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts was founded at Ann Arbor. The original curriculum consisted of Latin, Greek, and the more elementary branches of mathematics. The College has since expanded giving rise to some thirteen new schools and colleges. Today the College faces a national call to arms with grim determination as it speeds up its program with a twelve month schedule.

DEAN KRAUS

Dean Edward H. Kraus, one of the better known mineralogists and educators of this country, first came to Michigan in 1904 as an Assistant Professor of Mineralogy. As a reward for his patience and calm efficiency in the execution of his duties he was made Director of the College of Pharmacy in 1923, an office which he ably filled until he resigned ten years later in order to accept his present position. Since then student and faculty man alike have come to admire him more and more for his friendly manner and helpful advice.

COLLEGE OF ENGINEERING

DEAN CRAWFORD

Having completed his initial year as head of the Engineering School, Dean Ivan C. Crawford has proved himself a capable leader in his short stay at the University. With his friendly spirit and efficient direction, he has endeared himself alike to the personnel and students in the College of Engineering. A native of Colorado by birth, Dean Crawford attended the University of that state and after graduation stepped immediately into an instructorship there. Advancing steadily to a full professorship of Civil Engineering, he became Dean of Engineering at the University of Idaho. Before arriving at Michigan he accepted the position of Dean of the Engineering and Architectural School at the University of Kansas.

Dean Crawford is well versed in national affairs, having been successively a Captain in the Colorado National Guard, a Major in the Engineering Corps during World War I, and a Lieutenant Colonel in the Engineering Corps Reserve since 1921. He will undoubtedly prove himself invaluable to the University in turning out men ready to help our country in the present national emergency.

ENGINEERING has been defined as "the art and science of directing the great sources of power in nature to the use and convenience of man." The College of Engineering of the University of Michigan has lived in accordance with this definition in the instruction of students by a capable faculty and through the use of extensive laboratory and library facilities.

The policy of the school is based on theory and general information, for it is believed that practical application can prove more beneficial if practiced in the respective position to which the graduate may be called. This is accomplished in conjunction with an efficient staff of instructors who are experts in practical instruction and scientific training.

1942, as never before, will prove the necessity and effectiveness of the University of Michigan College of Engineering. Recently equipped with a new branch of teaching, the National Defense Courses, the college, along with those of the nation as a whole, will form a vital and enormous cog in the United States' defense machinery.

The Engineer toys with log scales and slide rules, but he must also toil in the lab.

THE Engineering Council is the student governing body of the Engineering College. Elected members from each class and representatives of the various engineering organizations comprise its membership. The Council has a large responsibility in all matters of concern to the engineering student.

Among the more important of the council's many functions is the sponsoring of the Engineering Smoker, Slide Rule Ball, and Open House, the collecting of class dues, and the publishing of the Arch, a freshman directory.

The council also directs the function of the Honor Committee, which efficiently supervises the operation of the honor system. The Council, lead by such capable officers as Bob Summerhays, President, Bob Collins, Vice President, Verne Kennedy, Secretary, and Joe Hallissy, Treasurer, has continued to actually be one of the few functioning and live organizations on campus.

The work of these men is supplemented and aided by the Honor Committee consisting of Al Wilkie, Lee Aldinger, Jim Edmunds, Howard Howerth, Dave Wehmeyer, Dave Upton.

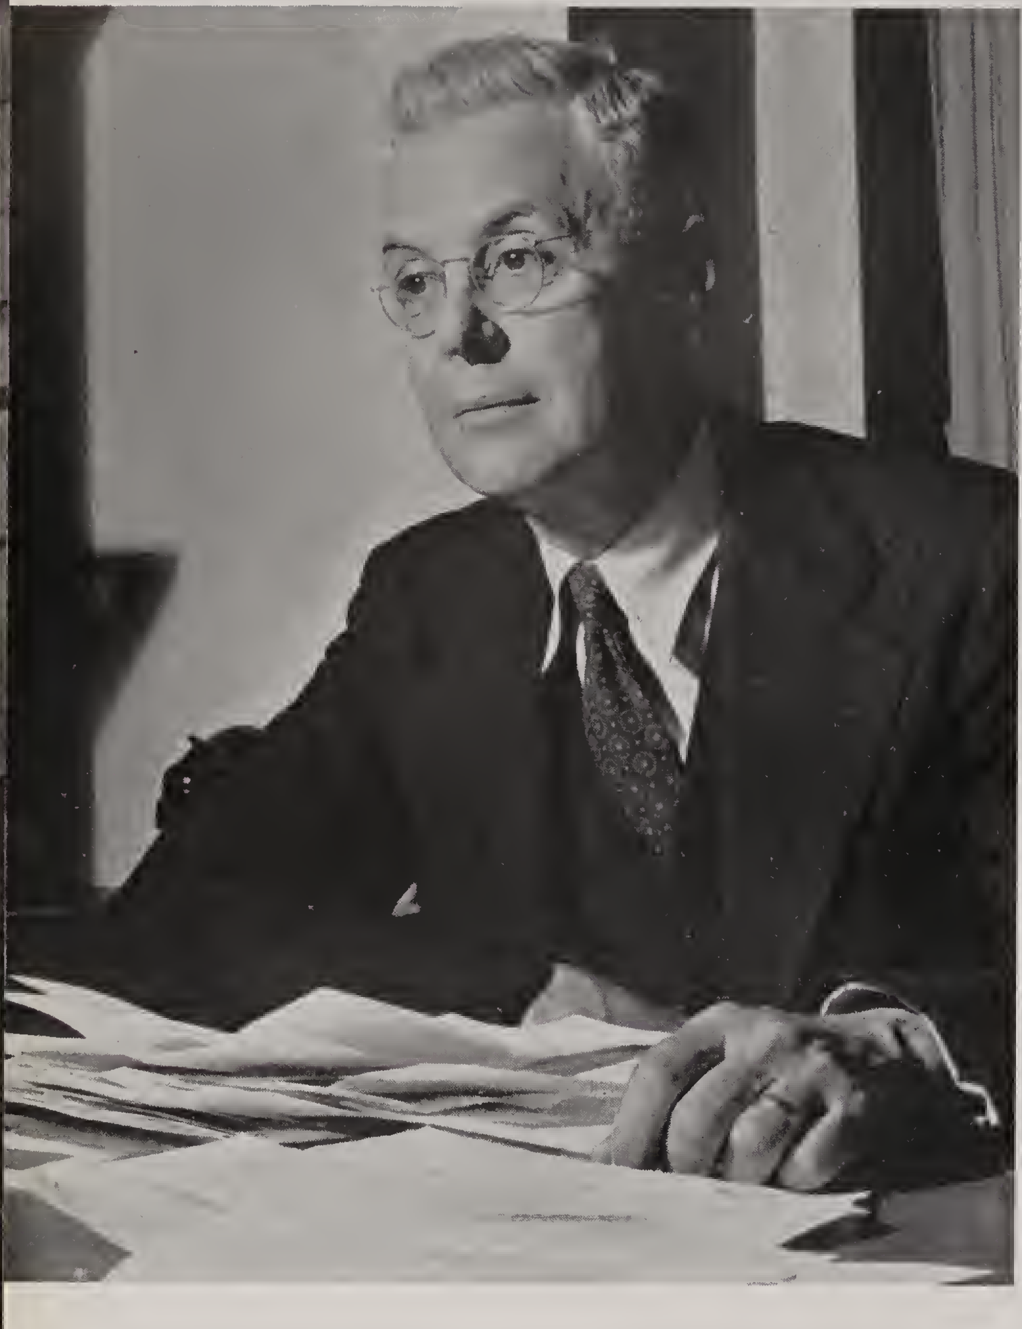
COLLEGE OF ARCHITECTURE



DEAN BENNETT

Under Dean Bennett's leadership, the College of Architecture and Design has become outstanding as a progressive school not only in architecture but in the whole field of design. New methods in the development of creative ability combined with a professional approach has been demonstrated by the staff in a definite coordination of effort. Dean Bennett organized a Conference on Design, held in Ann Arbor two years ago and attended by world-famous architects and designers. This conference, the first of its kind, is widely known for its effect on the teaching and practice of design in this country.

This year he has been successful in securing as visiting teachers or lecturers national leaders in the field of city planning and housing in connection with the new graduate course in Regional and City Planning. He is a member of the State Registration Board of Architects, Engineers and Surveyors, and Vice-president of Collegiate Schools of Architecture.

Castle Bungay, his summer home on Lake Huron, as well as a well-equipped shop in his Ann Arbor home, prove that Architecture and Design have their lighter moments for Dean Bennett.

RE SENIORS

It is only necessary to wander through the corridors and workrooms of the Architectural School to be aware of the air of informality which surrounds all activity in this school. One is impressed by the intensity, with which these students create, and their sensitivity to line, texture, and form.

After complete analysis of specific advertising problems and careful designing to suit reproduction restrictions, deft brushes create the magic of commercial design.

Workrooms echo the new trends revealed in clay models, sketches from life, and finely designed plans for modern communities.

DEAN GRIFFIN

Professor of transport and commerce, expert on the United States Shipping Board, authority on banking and marketing, Dean Clare E. Griffin is well known for his versatility in the field of economics and business administration.

After gaining experience teaching economics at Dartmouth and transportation at Johns Hopkins, Dean Griffin came to the University of Michigan where he became Associate Professor of commerce and industry. Later he was elevated to the position of Professor of marketing, and finally in 1925 became dean of the newly founded school of Business Administration.

Delving into the problems of big business

Recognizing the problems of modern business and industry and the educational needs created by them, the University established the School of Business Administration in 1925. Since then its program has been extended and its facilities enlarged to such a degree that it is now one of the better recognized schools of its type in the country. Requiring a bachelor's degree for admission (except for those who fill the University's combined curriculum requirements) the school is basically for graduate study. Its general purpose is to provide the student with instruction of a professional grade in the basic principles of management, to afford training in the use of quantitive measurements in the solution of management problems, and to assure education in the relationships between business leadership and the more general interests of the community.

SCHOOL OF DENTISTRY

DEAN BUNTING

For over forty years Dean Russell W. Bunting has been connected in one capacity or another with the school of Dentistry. He has through these years watched it grow and done much to advance it to the status that it enjoys today. With the addition of the new Kellogg Institute last year, the school took another step forward in the field of science and research. With the aid of Dean Bunting, who was the recipient of the Callahan Memorial Award in 1929 and the Fauchard Award in 1930, and with the improved facilities for the school, the student of dentistry today can feel sure that he is getting a sound training which will enable him to go into practice almost immediately after graduation.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

DEAN EDMONSON

Dean Edmonson became Dean of the School of Education in 1929—having obtained his A.B. and A.M. at the University earlier. He is a member of many state and national educational committees, including the Educational Policies Commission of N.E.A. since 1935. However, the most recent of these positions came with his appointment as a member of the University War Board.

His latest publication is the textbook "Civics in American Life"—just off the press, in which he collaborated with Arthur Dondineau. Dondineau has worked with him on several other publications.

Although many persons are interested in the people around them, Dean Edmonson makes a hobby of his interest. He likes nothing better than to ride on unusual and old trains which are not used much. He enjoys talking with the brakemen, conductors, and other passengers, and often engages in this pastime while traveling.

Practice teaching and student conferences are part of the teacher training program.

Following a student's decision to become a teacher, a conference is arranged between the student and his adviser. Courses are planned for the branch of the profession which is desired. Young women in the elementary training course, along with their regular courses in their junior year may elect to assist in nursery, kindergarten or first grade. Because it may be the first actual contact with children, the volunteer does not actually teach but helps the regular teacher.

The first stage often reveals lack of ability to get along with children, or develops this necessary requirement. During the senior year, an actual teacher-training course is carried out at the University High School or in a designated school. Here the student handles lesson plans and classroom procedure, is helped by the critic teacher—finally to teach alone.

After this period of training has been passed satisfactorily, a certificate is awarded and the student is qualified to teach in any school system which will accept his background and training.

Voluntary assistance in the nursery school develops ability to get along with children. To understand their problems and develop in the child good personality traits is the primary aim of the nursery school.

EDUCATION

Rather than dealing in abstract and inanimate materials as many other schools do, the Education School deals with that most pliable but exceedingly tensile material, youth. Moulding the still immature minds of children proves a fascinating and ever changing occupation for those who have chosen this field.

In order to solve successfully the varied problems of personality and environment which are a large part of this career and to develop a skill for stimulating the desire for learning, students in the Education School attend classes in which they learn fundamentals and methods of teaching. In addition to class work, these students, in their senior year, have actual experience making lesson plans and teaching classes in the particular field in which they are concentrating.

Elementary practice teaching must be done off campus at one of several designated colleges. However, those training for high school may remain here and practice teach at University High school.

This school offers a specialized training in the many phases of the profession, yet combines with this the background and general knowledge necessary to a well-rounded individual.

The goal—complete independence and responsibility in conducting a class.

SCHOOL OF FORESTRY

DEAN DANA

Realizing the importance of forestry and conservation in the country today with the ever diminishing supply of national resources, Dean Samuel T. Dana has done much to promote the activities of forestry and in the extensive training of students in this field.

Born in Portland, Maine, a center in this industry, Dean Dana later entered Boudoin College in this state and graduated summa cum laude in 1904. Repeating this scholastic achievement at Yale, he proved conclusively his abilities as a forester. Since his collegiate career and before his appointment as dean, his experiences in all phases of forestry have been extensive and varied. He served various offices in the United States Forestry Service beginning as a forestry assistant in 1908. Later he was appointed assistant chief of offices of silvics and forest investigations.

Since 1927, the year that he became associated with the University of Michigan, Dean Dana in the role of professor and dean has correlated the activities of the College of Forestry into an institution of undisputed merit.

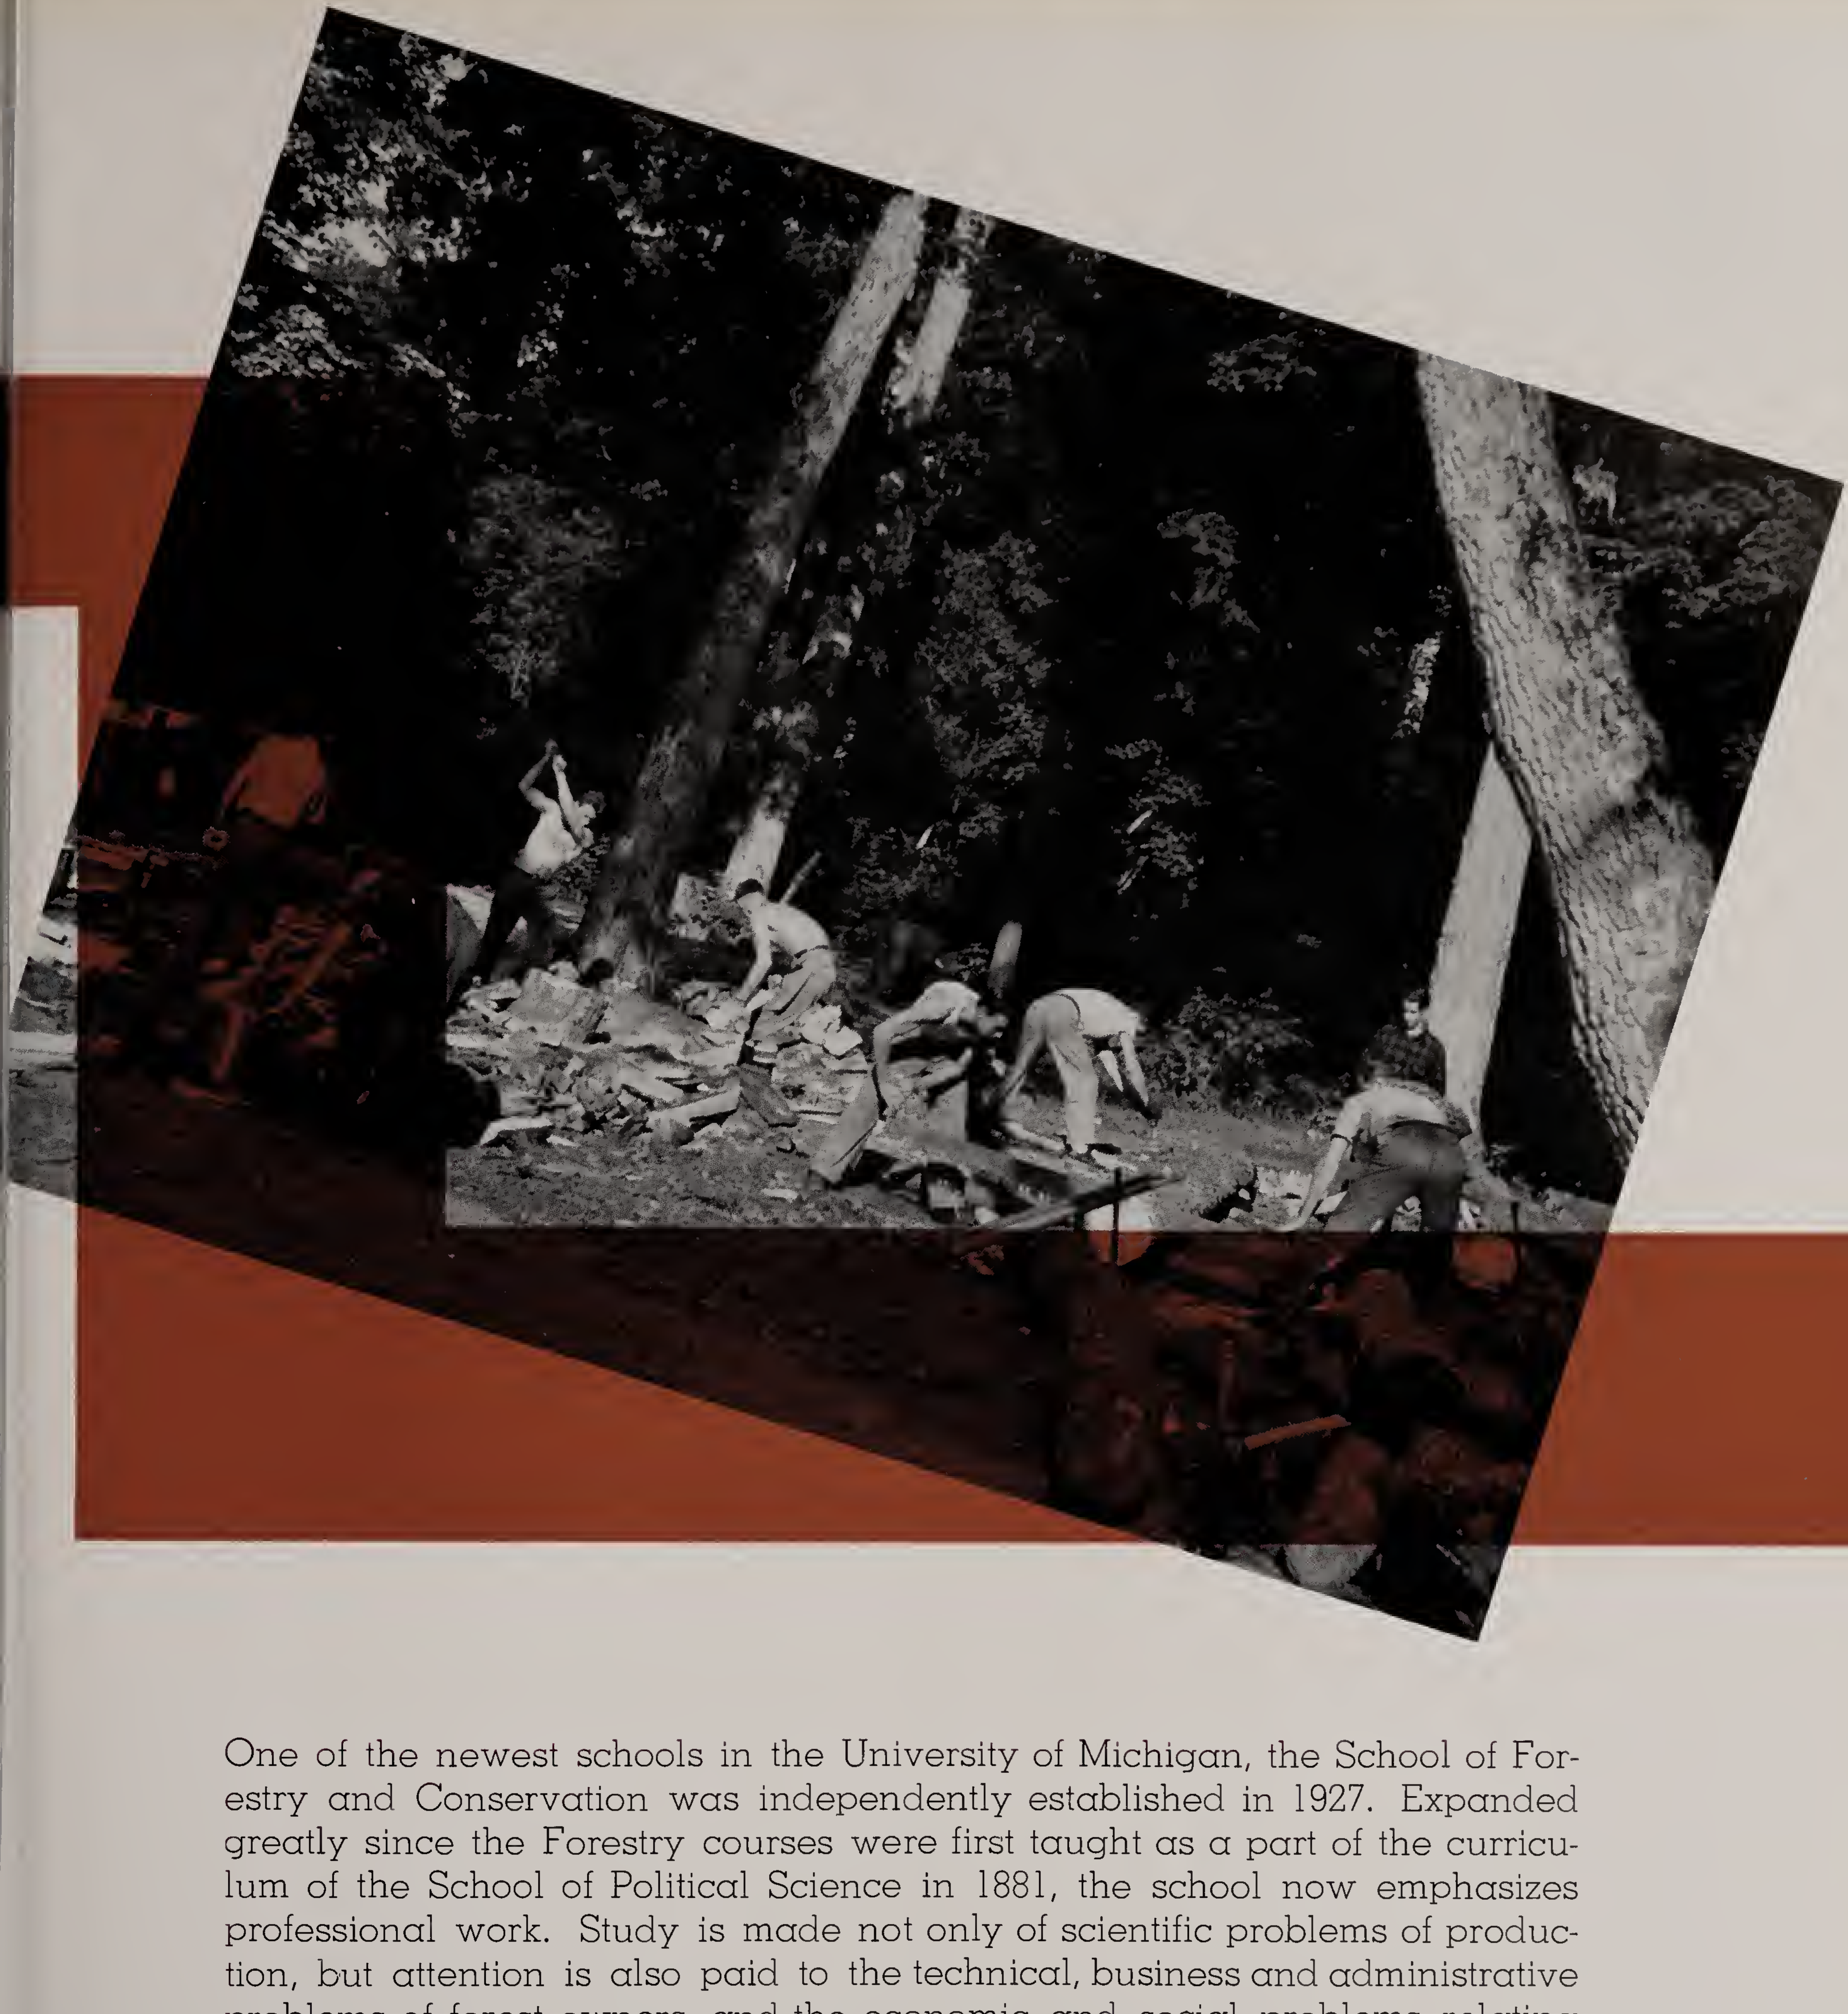
Attired in typical hand tailored togs, the foresters make calculations in preparation for the actual work.

After scouting the area for fire hazards Joe Forester telephones in his report.



One of the newest schools in the University of Michigan, the School of Forestry and Conservation was independently established in 1927. Expanded greatly since the Forestry courses were first taught as a part of the curriculum of the School of Political Science in 1881, the school now emphasizes professional work. Study is made not only of scientific problems of production, but attention is also paid to the technical, business and administrative problems of forest owners, and the economic and social problems relating to the development of human welfare. Conservation is studied as a philosophy in relation to commerce and industry, as the only sound basis of national prosperity.

Basic training is given the student in the biological, engineering and social sciences, specialization not being encouraged until the third year of Forestry.

For those specializing in Forestry Production, the University maintains Camp Filibert Roth located in the Upper Peninsula. Students camp there during the ten weeks of summer and encounter the practical problems of forestry, receive field instruction in mapping and measuring forest stands, fire prevention and control, and doing the construction and maintenance of the forest.

The social and academic center for the many advanced students of Michigan.

The first graduate degrees to be granted by the University of Michigan were those of Master of Arts, conferred in 1849, and Master of Science, conferred ten years later. In the spring of 1892, a graduate department was organized in connection with the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts. Encouraging the separate instruction of graduate students, the new department inaugurated a more systematic and efficient program of graduate study. The rapid growth of the department soon necessitated its separation from the College of Literature, Science, and the Arts. Thus, by the fall of 1912, the scope of the school was enlarged so as to include graduate work in all fields of study.

In 1935 the Horace H. Rackham and Mary A. Rackham Fund provided gifts of a building for the Graduate School of the University and a generous endowment for research. The income from this endowment has made possible a great expansion and improvement of the research and educational facilities of the graduate functions of the University. The building's numerous lecture halls, reading, study, discussion, and conference rooms have proved to be an inspiring help to the school's research groups.

DEAN YOAKUM

Clarence S. Yoakum, Dean of the School of Graduate Studies of the University of Michigan, is well qualified for his position. After graduating from Campbell College with an A.B. in Psychology in 1901, he held a fellowship at the University of Chicago.

He became a professor at the University of Texas and was later made head of the Department of Philosophy and Psychology. After the first world war, in which he served as a Major in the Psychological Service, he was appointed director of the Bureau of Personnel Management at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. He accepted a similar position at the University of Michigan five years later, and in 1927 he became director of the Bureau of University Research. Besides his work as dean, this well-known Kansasan is vice-president in charge of Educational Investigation.

SCHOOL OF LAW

Esteemed to be one of the finest institutions of its kind, the University of Michigan Law School continues year after year to live up to its traditionally high standards of education. Proceeding on the premise that students are best trained for this profession by obtaining not only a thorough knowledge of the law, but also a knowledge of their cultural background, the faculty places emphasis on the origin and the development of the profession and its relations to society. Thus our legal system is examined as a general scheme of social control with a background of economics, political theory, sociology, and other social sciences, as well as psychology, psychiatry, and biology. Especial care is taken to develop in the students a knowledge of the procedural side of the law and to that end their regular instruction is supplemented by practical exercises in a fully equipped practice court and by student managed case clubs or moot courts. The work is hard and the hours long, but the graduate has the extreme satisfaction of knowing that he has received one of the finest legal trainings obtainable.

DEAN STASON

Dean E. Blythe Stason first came to the University in 1919 as an Assistant Professor of Electrical Engineering. At this time he also enrolled as a student in the Law School. Three years later he graduated with a J.D. degree, a degree given in recognition of outstanding attainments in scholarship. After two years of private practice, he returned to the University, became a Professor of Law and finally in 1939 was elevated to his present position. The Law School and the University can justly feel proud of Dean Stason, for his work as a student, as a Professor, and as a Dean has always been of a quality commanding the highest respect.

MEDICINE

SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

DEAN FURSTENBERG

Dean Albert C. Furstenburg has been "top man" in the College of Medicine since 1935. During his administration, numerous changes and improvements have been made. A new building, the East Medical, has been built and much new equipment purchased. He has been influential in organizing a faculty which has kept Michigan the Mecca of so many medical students.

1942 has placed many new problems to this capable man. With the advent of war, even the facilities were taxed to their utmost to train rapidly a large group of badly needed doctors. As Dean Furstenburg well knows, doctors cannot be "turned out" by factory methods. No bit of training or practice can be neglected and the standards of skill and knowledge cannot be lowered where men's lives are concerned. By instituting a summer semester and appealing to every man of the student body and of the faculty, he has materially aided the problem of "defense doctors." Drawing from his vast experience and intimate knowledge of the problem, he has capably handled his great responsibility.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC

DIRECTOR MOORE

Following the completion of his A.B. and A.M. at the University of Michigan, Dr. Moore continued with his work in the study of organ and theory as a graduate. After a number of years of study in Europe he returned here to become an instructor, and later Director of the School of Music in 1923.

Several of Michigan's traditional favorites are Dr. Moore's compositions. Among these are "College Days," "The Bum Army" and "Varsity." From 1933-36, he was President of the National Association of Music Schools, and from 1936-38, President of the National Association of Music Teachers, followed by the position of National Director of W.P.A. Music Programs in 1939.

More recently, in March of this year, Dr. Moore was appointed by the Special Services Branch of the War Department at Washington for the purpose of advising in the setting-up of a curriculum for a school for the training of regimental recreation officers. He is to help in giving courses for the training of the initial group of 125 officers.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

DIRECTOR REDDIG

Miss Rhoda Reddig, Director of the School of Nursing and Director of Nursing Service in the University Hospital, has devoted herself wholeheartedly to the Defense Program. Extensive experience, including positions as head nurse and assistant night director at the Presbyterian Hospital School of Nursing, her alma mater, and several years here at the hospital have given her the background necessary to successful planning and organization of such work.

At the present time, she is in charge of "refresher" courses sponsored by the University Extension Service for graduate nurses throughout the state, except for the Detroit area. She is also a member of the Medical Aid division of the Red Cross Disaster Committee, of which Ira M. Smith is the chairman. In addition, she is chairman of the Red Cross Emergency Nursing Service for this area, and is organizing a Volunteer Nurse's Aid program to train laywomen.

Miss Reddig is one of the many persons on campus who is doing more than her share in the National Defense Program.

FIELD

NG H. YOST

For forty years the keystone in Michigan's athletic wall has been Fielding Harris Yost. Now in his first year of retirement, Yost looks back on forty years, fat years of progress and success. Years in which his teams made records unparalleled in collegiate history and his athletic plant became the best in the country.

It is neither the won lost record of his football teams, nor the athletic plant he has built, however, that shows Yost's true value to Michigan. Instead it is that ambiguous something called "character," the character he has built. Every coach is called a great character builder, and a devotee to fair play, and good sportsmanship, but few really are. Yost is one of the few, a coach that has treated the game as a religion, and not a business. Sure he hated to lose, but that would never prompt him to try anything shady. One of the reasons he hated to lose so much was because he invariably put his all into a game. No Yost team ever lacked courage. His boys had absolute faith in him and would fight for him against any odds. It was this same faith in Yost's honesty, sincerity and judgement that made reluctant authorities finally give the "Grand Old Man" the go signal on his farsighted building program. Yes, Yost is retired but his men will carry on. Courtright, Fisher, Mann, and the others continue to produce their champions in the style of the old master who brought them here. The athletic plant he built will never crumble, and his champions of the West, the better men he has helped to build, will never forget their great teacher. The tradition of Fielding Yost will never retire at Michigan.

DIRECTORS

T O. CRISLER

In the Spring of 1938 when Michigan started looking around for a new football coach to bring back her traditional glory, she realized she must get more than just a good coach, for the "Old Man" would soon be retired as Athletic Director and the new mentor would have to be capable of handling the work normally cut out for two experienced men. The man finally selected was H. O. "Fritz" Crisler, the scholarly giant who had performed miracles at ivy walled Princeton. Fritz was persuaded to come back to his first love, Big Ten football. Here he had become an All-American under that other "Grand Old Man," Alonzo Stagg at Chicago, and in that stronghold of the North, Minnesota, he gained his first fame as a football coach. If Crisler welcomed his chance to reenter Big Ten football, his joy was only a fraction of that expressed by Michigan alumni. Our gridiron giants again reached national prominence. Five All-Americans in four years is one indication of the individual stars Crisler has developed since his arrival, but the team record is even more indicative of his coaching genius. This year Crisler took on the double responsibility of handling both the Athletic Directorship and the football fortunes of the University. He has done the job well filling it beyond all expectation. As Yost's successor there only could have been one man, and that man is "Fritz" Crisler, the highly respected president of the American Association of College football coaches for the year just ended. With "Fritz" Crisler at the helm, we need not fear as to the management of our athletic fortunes.

They hold regular meetings in addition to their two big social functions of the year, the M-Club Varsity Dance and the big Pep Rally which precedes the Minnesota football game. At the rally they not only have to plan the program but they must also help police the city afterwards to keep the students with their new-found pep from running wild and stepping on the tender toes of some solid citizens. THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The Board of Directors of the Athletic Association is made up of the two managers of the I.M. Sports building, the Director of Athletics, and the senior managers of all varsity sports. The chairman is Robert Wallace, varsity basketball manager, and the secretary is Robert Krause, one of the I.M. managers.

With the exception of H. O. Crisler, the Athletic Director, the Board is also the undergraduate M-Managers Club. The M-Managers Club is a select group enjoying the same privileges extended the Varsity M Club as free life passes to all home athletic events. The M-Managers' function as the Board of Directors is to help the students form policy by acting as a representative of the athletic association in matters brought before the Board in Control of Collegiate Athletics. Upon petition of one hundred students any matter pertaining to athletic policy and practice may be brought before the Board of Directors for consideration.

Coach Crisler and his All American Captain

1941, predicted to be a lean year in Michigan football, turned out more than lean for the opponents who expected a soft touch. Six victories, a tie, and a lone 7 point defeat was the record made by All American Captain Bob Westfall and his Sophomore studded squad, an unpleasant surprise for anybody who expected a day of rest when Michigan came to town.

A great veteran line should be given much of the credit for a highly creditable season. Center Bob Ingalls was voted All-Conference on everybody's team and his understudy, Ted Kennedy, received honorable mention, something unheard of for a second string lineman. Flanking these pivot men were four first rate guards, Kolesar, Franks, Pregulman, and Melzow, the latter doubling as our extra point booter. From there on out the wealth of substitutes vanishes. Two tackles, Big Ox Wistert selected by many for an all-conference berth, and "Rube" Kelto, elected the team's most valuable player, were sixty minute players in a great many games. The same was true of Joe Rogers and Harlin Fraumann at end. After Joe was hurt in the Minnesota game, Sharpe and Smeja handled his position well, an encouraging omen for next year.

Behind this great forward wall a green backfield revolved around Captain Westfall. Captain-elect Ceithaml moved up from alternate to first string quarterback and called the plays with perfection. Halfbacks were numerous, but those two sophomore sensations White and Kuzma wasted little time in burning up the backfield.

Both Westfall and Ingalls were named on various All-American teams and invited to play in the Shriner's All-Star game in New Orleans.

1941 was a great year in Michigan football, and the graduating seniors can well be proud of their last year on a team that prompted Lou Little, the famous Columbia coach, to say that the '41 edition of the Wolverine Express was the best team he had ever seen on a college gridiron.

Michigan's great Captain Bob Westfall was selected for All-American fullback honors this year by experts from Coast to Coast. The country's leading exponent of the spinner play, Westy has been a big offensive weapon in three successive years. Used on end runs as well as line smashes and spinners, Westy stamps himself as one of the most versatile fullbacks in Michigan history. As a further honor Westy was elected Captain of the Eastern All Star team, the first honor of this kind bestowed in the history of the annual New Year's day tussle.

MICHIGAN 19 MICHIGAN STATE 7

With a boy named Harmon broadcasting his first football game from the Michigan press box another boy named Tom from Harmon's home town Gary, Indiana, was playing his first game of football for the Wolverine Varsity. Bachman had drilled his Spartan gridders for weeks, and a veteran squad was ready to tear into an unheralded Michigan football team which was playing without its three great All-Americans—Harmon, Evashevski, and Frutig—for the first time in three years. Experts picked State and rightfully so, but they did not reckon with the new Wolverine Sophomores. Filling in nobly wherever needed, the esteemed class of '44 helped Captain Bob Westfall, Ox Wistert, and the other veterans smash State 19 to 7. State scored first to give the Crisler charges quite a scare, but the drive of our great line and the speed and power of Westfall, Nelson, Kuzma, and White was not to be denied. Kuzma in particular looked good in his first game as he scored twice, completed three passes, and did a fair job of punting. In the fourth quarter he drew a laugh and a cheer from the crowd as he booted a high punt up the field and then raced to the fifty where he downed his own kick.

The Michigan line's remarkable record of not permitting a score on any kind of a running play within the 35 yard line was continued with Big Ox Wistert rampaging all over the field in his one man stampede on State's offensive attack. Veteran Bob Kolesar and newcomers Pregulman and Franks carried on the tradition of great Wolverine guards reminiscent of Heikkinen and Brennan, the pocket battleship blitzers of Coach Crisler's first team here. The referee had quite a headache on his hands as the Spartans substituted Davis' with reckless abandon. Brothers Wy and Will and dusky Hugh ran on and off the field so often under the new free substitution rule that the referee needed an adding machine or a parking meter to make sure Charlie Bachman was not pulling a Houdini on him.

Kuzma made two of the six pointers while Captain Westfall drove the other one over from the four. Redheaded Bob Ingalls stepped back from his center position to split the uprights for the only extra point.

Michigan's Big Ten Season opened against the Iowa Hawkeyes with a slim 6 to 0 victory on the rain soaked turf of the Michigan Stadium.

Tommy Kuzma scored from the three yard line on two tackle smashes, after he and Captain Westfall had alternated in bringing the ball down the field the first period.

A 15 yard penalty threw Iowa back to the two yard line. A magnificent punt carried past the midstrip into Michigan territory, but Crusher Kuzma caught it on the dead run and bulled his way through to the Hawkeye's 18. Westfall took it to the 3 on as many plays and Kuzma made the score. The game could have finished here as far as the scorekeeper was concerned, because 3 more periods saw both goal lines unscathed by enemy ball carriers.

Iowa played a magnificent game despite the mud and rain. Remembering the humiliating defeat 2 years ago when Tom Harmon and another Michigan team marred an otherwise perfect season, Iowan underdogs rose up on their haunches and actually outdrove the vaunted Michigan line. On four separate occasions the Wolverines were knocking at the gate only to have a MacArthur like defense thrown up by their hard bitten adversaries, Judging from the hordes that stayed away from the game, less than 30,000 attended, very few expected such a close conflict.

The superb punting of Tommy Kuzma was the bright light in the drab setting. Several times his coffin corner boots put the Hawks in the hole. Hard tackling Ox Wistert was the line star of the game. The great tackle blocked a kick, recovered a fumble, and ran all over the field stalking the prey which he pounded to the ground with his vicious blocks and tackles. The spectators usually do not notice a lineman, but Wistert's superior play was so obvious that everyone gave him a big hand.

For the Corn Belters Jim Walker, giant negro tackle, and backfield stars Bill Green and Bus Mertes stood out.

MICHIGAN 6 IOWA 0

MICHIGAN 40 PITTSBURGH 0

After a slow start the Wolverines suddenly came to life and filed down the claws of the Pitt Panthers to the tune of 40-0. It was Michigan's most decisive victory of the year and worst defeat ever dished out to the once-mighty Pittsburgh team.

Thirty minutes of grace were granted the Panthers by the Maize and Blue who scored but one of the six touchdowns in the first half; but the Crisler men made up for lost time in the second period as Kuzma, Robinson, Boor, and Nelson followed Tippy Lockard's example and drove into the end zones for 34 points.

Maize and Blue scoring was split five ways with Lockard picking up seven yards for the first marker in the initial period, followed by touchdown drives of 48 and 7 yards by Tommy Kuzma, 28 by Davey Nelson, 5 by Don Robinson and one by Don Boor in the second half. Ingalls and Melzow split the uprights for the extra points.

The game's leading ground gainer was 155 pound halfback Nelson who put over the Wolverine's final tally with a 28 yard run in the last minutes of the game. Previously little Davie had weaved his way down the field in a 51 yard touchdown dash only to have the run nullified by a clipping penalty.

In this game the spectators got their initial glimpse of triple-threat Don Robinson who in his first running attempt in collegiate competition shook off two would-be tacklers and scored the fifth Michigan marker of the afternoon. But there was more to the show. Captain Bob Westfall and field general Ceithaml both came through with brilliant performances as did the mighty Wolverine forward wall which thoroughly out-charged and out-fought the Panther linemen.

The Wolverines had pushed the Pitt team to the one foot line when the referee's gun sounded the end of the massacre. And the 34,403 impressed spectators who filed out of the vast bowl, forgot their previous fears that the 1941—Michigan team would be lost without the services of Harmon and Evashevski and would be forced to play a season of defense ball. The Wolverines had proved their offensive power and drive, and no one knew that fact better than the weary Panther crew who left the field with no desire to hurry back to "dear Ann Arbor town."

This year's biggest "away" game was the titanic struggle with the mighty Northwestern Wildcats before a crowd of 47,000 that spilled out over the edges of Dyche Stadium.

Michigan scored first with a 78-yard sustained march featuring Bullet Bob Westfall, their great All American captain. Bill Melzow's unstained toe swung with precision and the Michigan fans went wild. Things were all Michigan until the middle of the second period, when Waldorf introduced Otto Graham for Bill De Correvont and things began to explode. A beautiful punt crossed the sideline on the Michigan four and Graham was just beginning. Kuzma matched the punt from his end zone but the Wildcats returned it to the Wolves' 37, and Graham was starting to go. After ripping off 11 yards around the left flank, he faded back on the next play and rifled a long pass to Bob Motle on the seven. On the next play Graham kept right on going to the two-yard marker. Two drives by fullback George Benson gained only five feet and then the heralded Graham drove into the line on the fourth down for what was ruled to be a touchdown.

As the second half got under way Northwestern was even stronger. One drive went clear to the Michigan five but Michigan held as Kuzma batted down a DeCorrevont pass in the end zone. Relying on those famous Yostian P's, punt, pass and pray Michigan's iron men kept praying until the big break finally came, when they jumped on it like a pack of starving cannibals. With the fourth down and eight to go on the Michigan 43, Kuzma dropped back in punt formation and sent one of his amazingly accurate boots out of bounds on the N. U. four. Michigan held and DeCorrevont kicked to Kuzma who was tackled inside the Wildcat 48. Without warning on the first play, Big Kuz faked a lateral to wing-back White, then faded back and looped a 23 yard forward to Joe Rogers who gathered it in on the 24 and raced unmolested to the goal line behind a 2 man screen of blockers. (That was the pass) and the (prayer) was answered. A final desperate barrage of Northwestern passes fell short, and Michigan's jubilant gang of fagged footballers trotted into the locker room on the long end of a 14 to 7 score.

MICHIGAN 0 MINNESOTA 7

It was Homecoming Day at Ann Arbor, and fraternities and sororities put on their best displays to welcome 85,000 spectators for the Minnesota battle. Both teams were undefeated for the year and both boasted outstanding stars. On a comparable basis, Michigan beat Pitt 40-0 and the Gophers skinned the Panthers 39-0 on succeeding weekends. Minnesota boasted two subsequent All-Americans, Bruce Smith and Dick Wildung, and Michigan, All-American fullback Capt. Bob Westfall. It was not just a game of stars, however, but of truly great teams. They were fighting for Big Ten and national supremacy in the biggest, toughest game of the year.

The big break came midway in the second period. Employing a streamlined version of the old "punt, pass and pray," Capt. Smith lofted a tremendous kick from his own 18 over the head of safety man Tom Kuzma which finally rolled to rest on the Michigan 12. Forced to kick from his own end zone, Kuzma, who punted marvelously all day, put one out of bounds at midfield. After a short pass downed by Michigan's Merv Pregulman, Minnesota connected, Smith to Frickey, on a long one back of Westfall. He was finally downed by Kuzma on our 5. It was first, and goal to go, for Minnesota as the Wolverines were backed to their goal line. On the third attempt, Frickey plunged over and Bill Garnaas added the extra point for the only score of the afternoon.

The real heart-breaker came at the very end of the fourth quarter. The long-awaited break came, with six minutes to play, when Higgins fumbled on the Minnesota 33. Kuzma passed to Ceithaml in the flats, and he gained the Minnesota 21. Then came the three blows: a pass to Al Thomas which he couldn't quite hold, a beautiful pass, Kuzma to Fraumann, all alone in the corner of the field, which he dropped as he fell across the goal line, and another long pass from Kuzma which Garnaas intercepted in the end zone. Thus the Little Brown Jug was again carted back to the North country for another, but probably its last annual stay.

Beneath the gray skies of a cool and threatening Champaign clime, a homecoming crowd of 30,101 windchilled spectators watched Michigan power destroy the light but shifty razzle-dazzle of the Orange and Blue Illinois squad. Back of a strong Wolverine line, Captain Westfall and Sophomore Tom Kuzma drove through and around the Zuppke team as they scalped the Indians 20-0.

Force, fumbles, and fighting featured the razzle-dazzle fizzle of an outclassed Illinois team. Knifing from the opening kickoff Michigan swept to the Orange and Blue 12. Illinois then had her first chance to fumble and kick, the Wolverines taking over again at midfield. Five downs later Kuzma stepped off left tackle shoving off the Indian tomahawks for a touchdown just six minutes in the quarter.

Backed by the war whoops of the "Faithful," Illini Braves Smith and Griffen ambushed the Michigan line with a T formation lateral run down to the fourteen. Stopping the surge, Michigan pushed back into Indian territory until tripped up by another fumble. But two kicks and two fumbles latter Captain Westfall drove over from the one yard stripe.

Passing and fumbling occupied both the Wolverines and the Indians, accounting for most of the ground gained and lost in the rest of the game. In the fourth period war cries took on a personal character and Wistert left the field for his physical encounter with the verbose Cheele. Even with No. 11 gone, Illinois couldn't crack the line and set up by a fumble and Kuzma's run, Westfall smashed center sixteen yards to the third Michigan marker.

Outplayed in all departments but penalties and fumbles, the Illini found these their most dependable ground-gainers. Brought down again and again by the low hard tackling, the Illinois backs couldn't hold the wet, cold pigskin. Neither, for that matter, could Michigan, but the offensive punch of the Wolverine backfield far offset their momentary lapses. Not only did Westfall enhance his All-American prestige, but Tom Kuzma and Paul White with their accurate passing and fast stepping proved themselves among the best backs in the game. In the line, Ingalls with his brilliant line backing and Kelto in fumble recovery matched Wistert in heads-up football through the entire game.

MICHIGAN 28 COLUMBIA 0

Putting on their best display for the Eastern grid experts, Michigan's Mighty Wolverines completely trounced and trampled the valiant Columbia Lions. Even the lop-sided score of 28-0 gives no indication of Michigan's vast superiority. One statistic which may help is yards gained by rushing: Michigan 359, Columbia 33. Coach Fritz made free use of substitutes to give the varsity a bit of a rest and to give his friend, Lou Little, somewhat of a break. Coach Little said, after the game, that the Wolverines were the finest college squad, individually and collectively, that ever hit the "big town."

Though the game had many stars, the standouts for the Maize and Blue were undoubtedly Bob Westfall and Tommy Kuzma. Kuzma turned in the longest run of the afternoon,—a 66 yard gambol through the entire Columbia team. Though forced to kick only twice, he averaged 46 yards on a quick-kick and a punt that rolled out on the Lion's one yard line. He scored Michigan's first touchdown on a seven yard buck after a 21 yard dash to put the ball in position. Westfall crashing the line like a man berserk, demonstrated his power and ability to the satisfaction of the most skeptical Easterner. He put on a show that New York will not soon forget and succeeded in capturing All-American plaudits for himself. His personal performance consisted of numerous power dives thru the Lion's line and around through and under their backfield which completely demoralized the Eastern team. He scored three of Michigan's tallies, one on a smashing, bucking run of 21 yards. His other scores came on short bullet bucks of three and seven yards climaxing long drives. His greatest contribution to Michigan's victory was his inspirational leadership which sparked the whole team.

Several other Wolverines turned in fine performances. Don Robinson, Davey Nelson, Tippy Lockard and Don Boor all showed considerable ball handling ability. Big Merv Pregulman played a great game and looked especially good on blocking a punt which set things up for Michigan's first touchdown. Paul White made several good runs and was only overshadowed by the great play of Kuzma and Westy.

The great Ohio State-Michigan Football rivalry which has waged furiously since the turn of the century never saw a more evenly matched exhibition of super charged offensive power than that displayed in this year's fitting climax to a great football season. Both teams entered the game with a lone, one touchdown defeat to mar their otherwise perfect seasons and each was geared for a fight to the death against its greatest rival. Before the largest crowd, 85,752, that had ever witnessed a Michigan-Buckeye tussle, the two went at it, hammer and tong.
royal was so fiercely fought.

To open the scoring and startle a confident Michigan crowd, Jack Graf, the great Buckeye fullback bulled his way over left tackle from the four after a 50 yard sustained drive. John Hallabrin converted, but the lead was short lived as Michigan came back quickly in the waning minutes of the initial half. In seven plays, Westfall, White, and Kuzma pounded the ball 40 yards with Kuzma blasting his way through the scarlet wall of Buckeye beef for the score. Bill Melzow rushed into the game, swung his automatic fibula and the score was tied.

In the second half of this western thriller, it was Michigan who took the initiative and after eight short minutes, the goddess of the inland seas was out in front for the first time as Kuzma rifled a perfect aerial to Whitey Fraumann, thirteen yards for the touchdown. Melzow again converted, his seventh extra point in a row.

Far from resigning themselves to defeat, the Columbus kids took the ball on the kickoff and came back to score on a sustained drive of seventy-one yards. Hallabrin again split the uprights and once more the teams were in a stalemate.

Like a pack of wildcats with Saint Vitus dance, the Bucks were striking again. Graf faded back slightly from his own 48, threw a short flat pass to "Flash" Fisher and that was all there was to it as the speedy Fisher wormed his way past our secondary and then outran our defense in a race for the goal line. Hallabrin missed his first kick and the crowd went mad.

The din never died down as Michigan took the next kickoff and pounded down the field to cross the goal in exactly 5 minutes with thirteen beautifully executed plays. Melzow, the extra point man, finally showed he was human and missed the upright that would have spelled victory.

swimming

Michigan had a typical swimming season. That means to those "in the know" that the Wolverines swept through all opposition with the usual finesse, style, and precision, with one exception, and Matt Mann has refused to bow his mighty head to that blot. It happened when wily Bob Kiphuth brought his Yale mermen to Ann Arbor for the highly heralded "meet of the year." It truly was the meet of the year and in addition, the surprise of the year.

With the "hottest" and most beautifully conditioned team of tankers our eyes had ever seen, the powerful Elis swept every event on the program—mercilessly trouncing the proud Wolverines 59-16, and ending an amazing record of 35 straight dual meet victories.

Truly, it was an amazing exhibition of nautical strength. It was, as Mann figured, no disgrace to lose to a team that packed the wallop of the Easterners. Names like Howie Johnson, Rene Chouteau, Dick Kelly, and Jim Cook all blended together to make Yale the greatest team of the year and one of the greatest of all time.

The brighter side of the swimming picture saw the Maize and Blue sweep through all the rest of their dual meets with members of the Big Ten, several Eastern foes, and Michigan State as victims. Ohio State fell twice before the Wolverines, despite the fact that it took the final race of the evening, the 400 yard free style relay to shove the Mannmen ahead of the battling Bucks in the Big Ten meet here in Ann Arbor.

Capt. Dobb Burton, swimming like an inspired dolphin took seconds in both the 50 and 100 yard free style dashes in the Conference, and then led off that final hair raising relay to stamp his work this year as a meritorious job well done. Young Jack Patten, the distance ace of the team since Jimmy Welsh's graduation, and new captain-elect for the '42-'43 season, regained his Big Ten 220 yard crown, but dropped his 440 title, while Jim Skinner retained the 220 yard breaststroke title. Both relays went to the Maize and Blue, to continue their long-held domination of the shuttle titles.

T-Bone Martin, regaining eligibility and the form which he showed his sophomore year, dove beautifully all year though he slumped to a third place off the low board in the Big Ten meet. Though Gus Sharemet failed to set the pool sizzling in this, his last year as a Wolverine tanker, he did show that he was the Great Gusto when he battled the speedy Howie Johnson on almost even terms in that classic Yale Meet. Gus swam three races in that meet, and his times in all three hovered around .52 seconds for the century—which is speeding in any man's country.

Even the printer couldn't tell which end was up on this one. Can you? The Michigan Varsity practices in those lanes on the ceiling.

Matt gives his breast stroke champion, Jim Skinner, a few words of advice after Jim finishes an important time trial.

The 1942 Basketeers did not complete the greatest record in Michigan hardwood history. In fact they finished in a seventh place tie. Despite this poor showing however, there are several redeeming features that bear mentioning.

Michigan finished seventh out of 10 teams represented in the Western Conference, but this does not tell the whole story. The Western Conference is not an ordinary league, not just a good league, but the strongest galaxy of court aggregations in the country. Year in, year out the Big Ten presents outstanding basketball teams, one of which usually wins the National Collegiate title. In a league as strong as that, seventh place is no disgrace.

Michigan's three victories over their big football rivals, Minnesota, Ohio State, and Northwestern were very gratifying, as was the hoopsters superior home play. Their victory record was not impressive but they played brilliant basketball in Yost Field House, vanquishing Minnesota, Ohio State and Chicago, holding Illinois, the conference champions to four points, and losing hotly contested games to Indiana and Purdue, two of the league's better teams. The hoopsters' home record however, was far superior to their showing on the road.

Another highlight of the season was Captain Elect Jim Mandler's new Michigan conference scoring record of 164 points erasing the old mark of 135 points set up by Jake Townsand, Michigan's all American "Houdini of the hardwoods," back in 1938. Jim was named second team All-Conference Center.

wrestling

The first Michigan coach to leave for army or navy duty was Wrestling Coach Cliff Keen, who temporarily terminated his seventeen year career as Michigan's wrestling mentor. Lieutenant Keen of the United States Navy leaves one of his greatest teams to take over coaching duties at the University of Georgia Physical Education School for Navy Pilots. Left behind are Captain Jim Galles, Conference Champion Manky Johnson, and a host of great wrestlers. Only Michigan State, runner up for national honors in 1941, managed to beat the Wolverines in dual competition, and had "Johnny" Johnson been eligible at that time, we might have skinned the Spartans. Johnny Greene was the heavyweight until the Dean's office removed him from the mat, after which Big Al Wistert took over the spot. One of the seasons highlights was the "Ox's" first match, a bonecrusher with a 240 pound giant from Nebraska. Wistert's principal hold, the flying tackle, proved ineffective as the big boy would repeatedly step back and then fall on Wistert with his full weight. Ox lived through the match, but that was about all.

Captain Jim Galles in the light heavyweight division was undefeated in dual meet competition, completing a three year record with but one loss. Others compiling good marks were Marv Becker, "Corkie" Courtright, Ray Deane, "Johnny" Johnson, and that hard luck kid, Herb Barnett.

In the light weights, Dick Kopel and Morey Anderson looked better than any we have had in several years.

hockey

Michigan's valiant sextet, plagued throughout one of the poorest years in Wolverine history by ineligibility and injury, was able to rack up but two wins and two ties as opposed to fourteen defeats.

Captain Paul Goldsmith and his mates salvaged only four games from the wreckage of mentor Eddie Lowrey's worst season, but those four contests provided maximum satisfaction for the victory-hungry pucksters.

Perhaps their biggest thrill took place at Minneapolis as they upset mighty Minnesota 4-3 in the thrilling opener of their four game series; the Gophers won the other three, but the lustre of the initial triumph still remains.

Other season high spots were the victory over Michigan Tech 2-1 in the final game of the home season, and two ties with the same team. The final win enabled the Wolverines to tie Tech for the mythical—in fact almost invisible—state collegiate hockey crown.

Lack of extensive personnel once again handicapped the Wolverines as they often held opponents even into the second or third periods before succumbing to the onslaught of superior numbers.

Led by Captain Goldsmith, every member of the team acquitted himself with credit; none more than junior net-minder Henry (Hank) Loud, who has been honored by his teammates with next year's captaincy.

golf

A tie for second place in the western conference meet sums up the quality of last year's Golf team. Ironically, the team bracketed with Michigan in the conference meet was Ohio State, a team twice defeated in dual competition by the smooth stroking Wolverines. Only Illinois and Notre Dame bested Coach Courtright's charges in dual meet record. A split with Michigan State and wins over Georgia Tech, Tennessee, Northwestern, Purdue, Indiana, and the afore-mentioned duo of Ohio State conquests were the principal milestones in the dual meet season.

Personnel included Captain Freddy Dannenfelser now of the U. S. Navy, John Barr also of the Navy (Air Corps), Captain-Elect John Leidy, Dave Osler, Bib Fife, and Ben Smith, the sophomore sensation of the conference, played number one man on the squad and had a remarkable season record of consistency, less than one stroke over par for all of his individual matches.

Golf is a very inconsistent game so it is virtually impossible to predict Michigan's chances in the Big Ten this year. Illinois, last year's winner, and Northwestern along with the Wolverines should be the principal contenders. All of our 1941 team is back except Captain Dannenfelser and Johnny Barr. A veteran squad supplimented by Chandler Simonds, Senior newcomer, and a host of sophomore hopefuls, should at least equal last year's brilliant record. The conference meet is here, another advantage toward attaining that elusive conference championship.

baseball

Michigan's 1941 baseball team took more than its share of collegiate athletic honors by taking the Big Ten Crown, sharing the mythical national championship and contributing a 50,000 dollar left fielder to the Detroit Tigers.

Coached by the Wolverines veteran mentor, Ray Fisher, the varsity stepped into an early lead for the conference crown and never stopped until every team on the league had cried the proverbial uncle.

One of the major factors for Michigan's brilliant success on the diamond was lanky Dick Wakefield. The sophomore beanpole proved to be such a capable fence buster that the Detroit Tigers offered him the biggest contract ever offered to a college ball player or any other free agent for that matter.

Along with the heavy hitting that the varsity possessed, came the capable pitching of curly haired, Cliff Wise. The husky junior proved to be one of the best speedball artists and control pitchers in the conference. Little mase Gould Muir and the veteran Mickey Stoddard formed the remaining part of the efficient Wolverine pitching staff that made most of the heavy hitting batters of the Big Ten look like pitchers at the plate.

The colorful Mike Sofiak and Capt. Bill Steppon were one of the smoothest looking collegiate keystone combinations until Steppon came down with a severe foot infection that ended his baseball career at Michigan.

George Ruehle, fast stepping Wolverine first baseman ended up with the best fielding average in the conference while being an able hitter in the clutch.

The varsity recognized the great ability of catcher George Harms when they elected him captain of the 1942 squad. The scrappy backstop was a real hustler behind the plate, while handling the pitchers in a manner that would do any major league catcher proud.

When the squad trots out onto the field this season it will mark Fisher's twenty-second year as the Wolverine baseball coach, a record unsurpassed by any other coach on the conference.

tennis

Captain Jim Tobin covers the net in an important doubles match while "Lawt" Hammett serves hard one.

Conference Champions—what could better describe the quality of Michigan's 1941 tennis team? After an extremely successful Southern trip the squad pitched into their dual meet schedule with nine straight wins. Two losses were then sustained during the illness of Captain Tobin, the Number 1, and Jim Porter, the number 3 man. After the return of these stalwarts the team again began to click and went through the remaining six meets unvanquished. The highlight, of course, was the conference championship meet in which Tobin No. 1, Stille No. 4, Gamon No. 5, and Johnson No. 6 all reached the finals in their respective divisions. Gamon and Johnson won titles. In the doubles Tobin and Hammett reached the finals in the number one bracket while Schaflander and Gamon did the same in the number three spot. Michigan won handily with 16 points.

Captain Tobin, unquestionably the team's outstanding player, is the only man not returning, but his loss will be strongly felt since there doesn't appear to be a replacement capable of wielding his racket. Lawton Hammett, one of the new co-captains, will probably move up to number one. Other veteran lettermen returning are Porter, Co-Captain-Elect Stille, Johnson, Schaflander, and Brewer, a 1940 letterman. Prospects for this year look great, but without Tobin nothing is certain. Northwestern and Chicago, perennial tennis greats, who finished in a second place tie behind the Wolverines in the Conference, are stronger than last spring so that Michigan can expect a real fight in her defence of the Conference crown this year.

"The team to beat is Michigan." That oft used phrase is a part of every Big Ten track coach's pep talk, for no other team has even approached the Wolverines' long term superiority on the cinder paths. The thinclads do not always win, but when they do not win they do always come close, close enough to be well respected. The 1942 indoor season was one of those come close years. After vanquishing all comers in dual meet competition the fighting Wolves went into the conference meet at Chicago commanding all the respect usually attending Michigan track teams. It was not in the books for another victory, however, and Coach Doherty's men went down to their first defeat of the season eleven points behind the winning Ohio State squad. Despite the loss, Michigan was not to be shoved into the background. As Lanky Bob Ufer, the country's outstanding collegiate indoor quarter miler, broke Ray Cochran's world record, and turned in a sensational 48.1 for the distance. This new world record was unquestionably the outstanding collegiate indoor track performance of the year.

The entire year was a good one for another fine Michigan track team backed by an all time record of more conference championships than any other team.

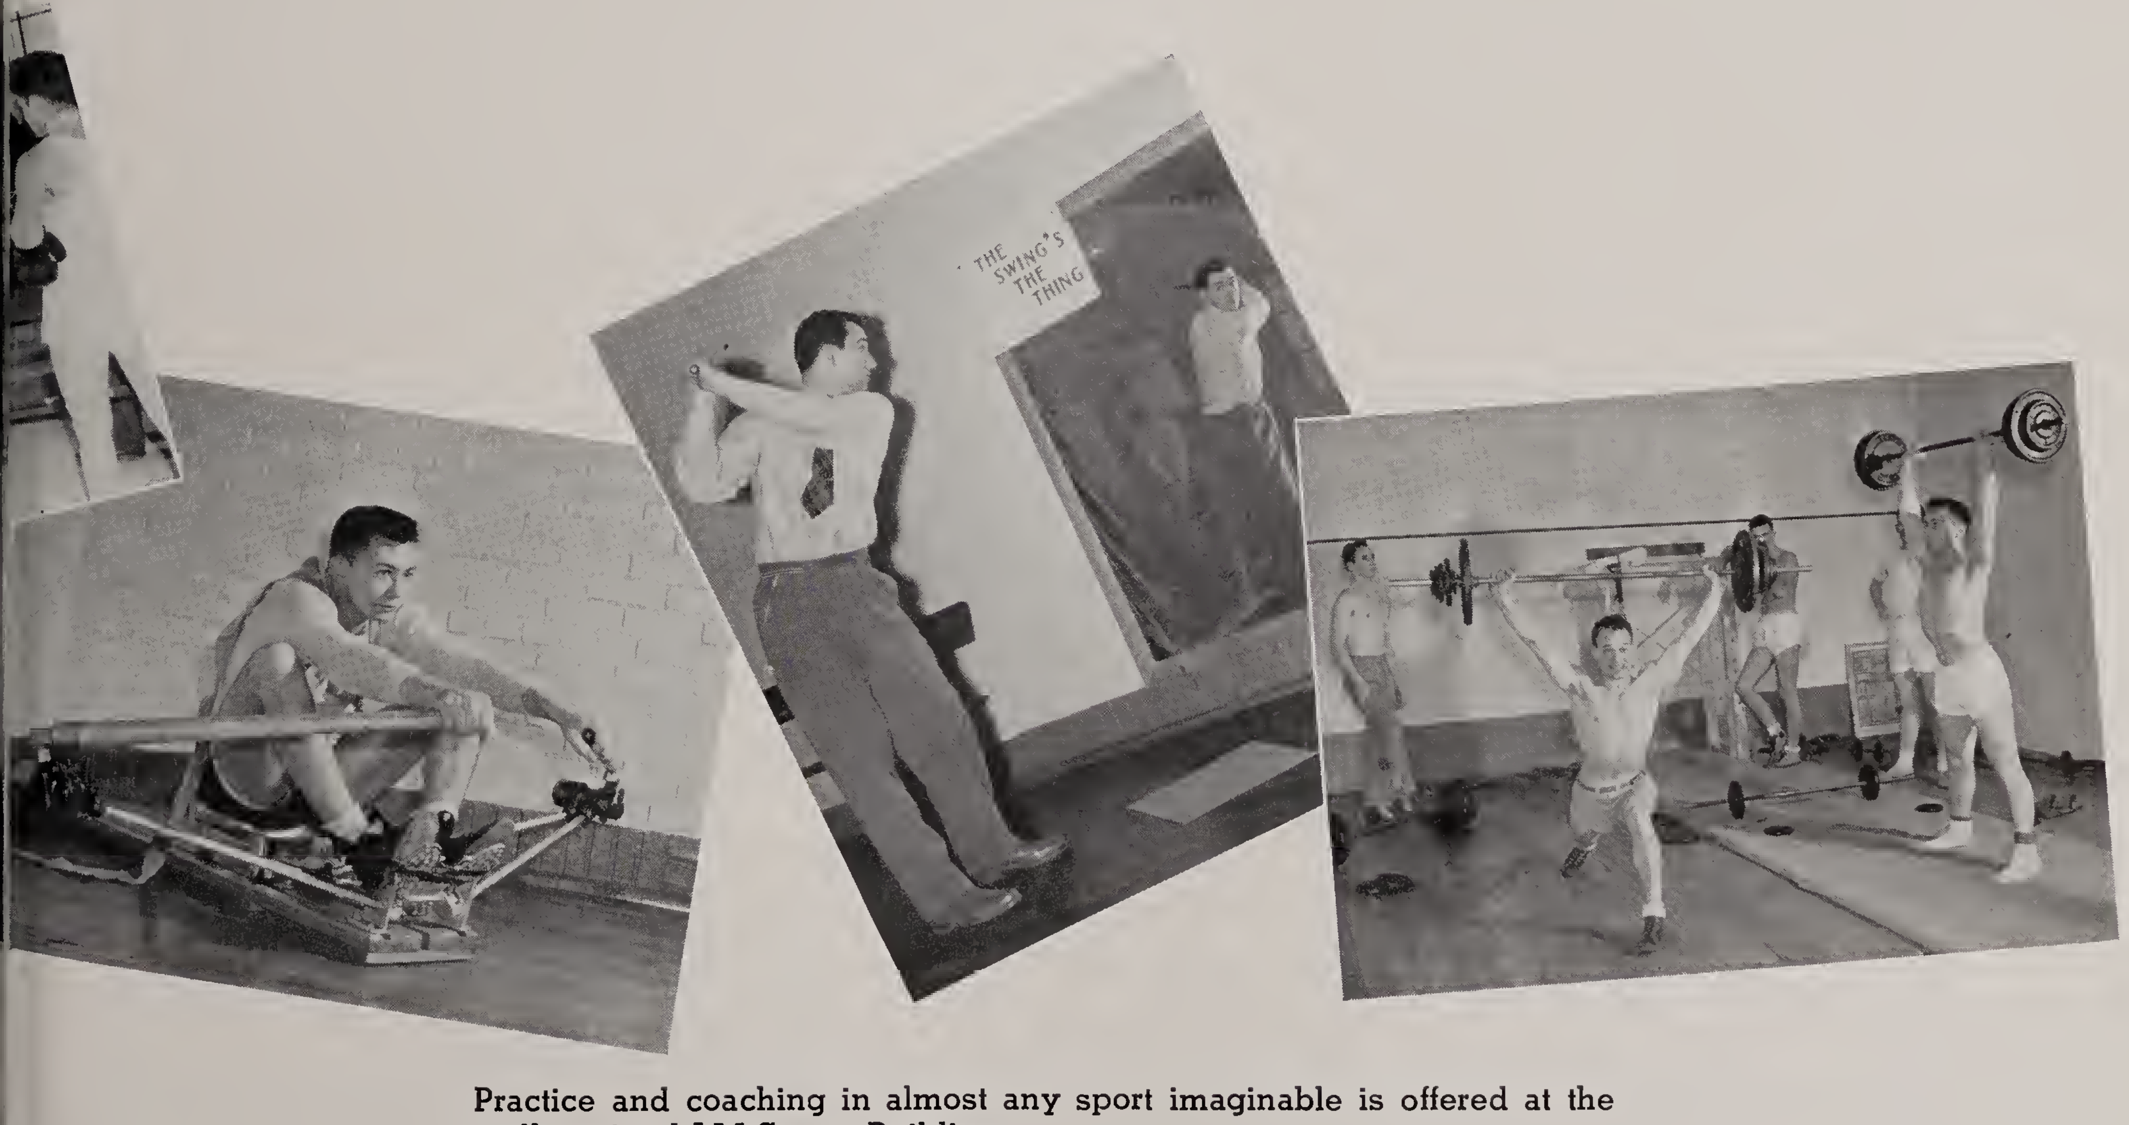
While King Winter reigns, bringing ice and bitter cold to nature's play ground, the students here have opportunity to go inside these walks for the fun and exercise offered by our great, all inclusive intramural sports program.

An indoor sport to satisfy every interest is the desire of the intramural coaching staff. Facilities in this massive sports building include squash, hardball, tennis, basketball and volleyball courts, a huge natatorium, two complete gymnasiums, and space and equipment for every other activity immaginable. With the exception of the natatorium which serves a dual purpose, the entire building is devoted to intramural sports, with expert instruction for anyone who wants to become adept at his favorite sport or desires to learn the fundamentals of a new one.

This year with our nation plunged into war, physical fitness is more important than ever before. Michigan is doing her part by throwing wide open the doors of her great athletic plant for the drilling of our ROTC unit as well as the usual exercise program for everyone. In addition to the sports building pictured here, Michigan has Yost Fieldhouse, a building seating ten thousand spectators and housing an eighth mile cinder track, movable equipment for Varsity basketball and wrestling, and ample room for football and baseball practice when rain or snow make it necessary for these teams to practice indoors. The Coliseum is an indoor ice palace that houses Varsity hockey and pleasure skating, while Waterman Gymnasium and the Union swimming pool are other athletic facilities open to any student wanting to enjoy competitive athletics and become physically fit.



Practice and coaching in almost any sport imaginable is offered at the well equiped I-M Sports Building.

PUBLICATIONS

The reorganized Board in Control of Student Publications, publishers of the Ensian, Daily, and Gargoyle successfully weathered what was perhaps the most stormy year of its existence. Beset by financial hazards brought on by the war, the Board, under the wary eyes of faculty and students, managed to keep an equivocally even keel. The Board consists of six faculty members, two alumni members, and three student members. It appoints the editors and managers of the several publications and is responsible for their conduct.

The Michiganensian, which has devoted an entire book to telling you of the University, will now take a few pages to tell you of itself, the work it does, and the people who do it. Producing a yearbook is a year's job, and on this page is the senior staff which directs the work. Its responsibility is great, for the 'Ensian has grown to be a big business as it has sought to produce a book which would interest professors and undergraduates, alumni, and prospective students.

It all began last spring when the Board in Control came out of its huddle to announce that Jerry Hewitt was the Managing Editor of the 1942 Michiganensian, and he in turn pulled four men and four women junior section editors out of the grabbag of sophomore tryouts. On the same afternoon, he threw the die again and recommended an art editor, a layout editor, and a women's editor—seniors to aid in the administration of the year's work.

With the assignment of sections, work began immediately wherever possible—in planning the art theme, the cover, color combinations, and page layouts. Scenics were taken while Ann Arbor was at its prettiest. Theoretically, the book was completely planned during the summer months; but, with the fall, a bloodless purge was accomplished as ideas were killed and resurrected in greater glory. After the first shock of being driven to put out the Student Directory in record time passed, the work on the Ensian began in earnest.

The Business Staff, under the direction of Al Owens and Rae Gustafson, inspired sophomore tryouts to sell more, more, more, more subscriptions. The squad on the diagonal intersection unwittingly even tried to sell junior and senior staff members subscriptions. Their foot weary treks in search of advertising were completed by Christmas time. Everything was going according to schedule until those little friends of ours dropped in at Pearl Harbor on a Sunday afternoon. Within a few days, our deadline was advanced one month, and Nick and Ditz were driven to distraction by incessant demand for layouts and design. Ineligibility and absorption in the war effort played their own sort of havoc, but fine cooperation on the part of a hard working lower staff pulled us up to schedule.

This year there have been some few innovations, simpler and cleaner layouts, more emphasis on better photography, a more prolific use of copy, and a judicious splashing of color. We hope it's a better book. The typewritters are clacking on the index, the last step but one. There remains the job of proofreading and the sad realization that all our ideas could not be translated into print; the new freshmen tryouts, the new administration, the job beginning again.

Pictures are the heart of a yearbook, and fortunate is the editor who can get good ones. Action shots, group portraits, informal individual and group pictures, scenic, candid glimpses all require a variety of skills which provide never ending headaches for a student photographer. More worries lie in the darkroom work of developing, printing, and special techniques. The results of the past year's efforts are spread over the pages you've seen, and we think they're above average as a general rule. To the right is the staff responsible for the work: Art Marion, photography editor, Stu Gildart, who ran the darkroom in addition to his photography work, Dick Strong, Jack Nisberg and Bob Killins.

Upholding a tradition of many years of service, this year's Daily again ranked among the top college newspapers of the country. From its home in the Stulent Publications Building, where the presses begin to roll every morning at 2:30, the Daily sends forth news of the campus as well as history of the nation and the world.

1942 was an exceptionally important year for the Daily, its staff, and readers. Keeping the campus posted on the latest war news was an all-day, and often an all-night, job. Teletypes clicked at all hours and the wire-news service poured facts and stories into the office twenty-four hours a day. University announcements likewise flooded the copy room as drastic changes made necessary by the war were hastily formulated and reconsidered.

The tryouts assembled the last-minute bulletins, junior editors sifted the news into fiction and typographical errors for the morning edition, and the seniors supervised, checked and revised, waiting anxiously for the deadline. By seven the presses had stopped and a complete newspaper with advertisements found its way to every fraternity, dorm and rooming house on campus.

In spite of the rush, the Daily continues to set the tempo for campus life with its coverage of social events and publicity for coming attractions. Its pages sponsored many a charitable campaign and publicized campus entertainment. It was used as a platform of discussion for both the varsity sports and the activities of clubs and societies. In a word, the Daily further entrenched itself as the vital organ of Michigan's activities.

"Revenue Runners" of the Daily are its business staff members, fusing competence and sales ability into the activity of their department. Supervised by the senior men, the six junior staff members manage the advertising, circulation and accounting of our Michigan paper. When not listening to customers' complaints over the missing tabloids, the Circulation Manager directs sales and distribution. Local merchants are persuaded to display their wares through the Daily's pages by the Local Advertising and Contracts Managers, while dragging efficiency out of the tryout staff is the duty of the Service Manager. The Accounts Manager keeps the bookkeeping department in a semblance of order and worries about the collection on last year's statements, but looking ahead is the National Advertising Manager who handles merchandising and promotional campaigns.

Culled each Spring from a group of two score tryouts, the 12 junior night editors on the Michigan Daily are the functional backbone of Michigan's student newspaper.

"In the slot" once a week with an assistant by his side, the Daily night editor is boss man for the nine hours before the 2:15 a.m. press run. On his shoulders falls the task of judiciously editing the thousands of words of A.P. wire copy which flow into the office by teletype from every corner of the world. It is the night editor who decides just what goes into tomorrow's Daily, how it is to be blue-penciled, and how it is to be played. And it is the night editor who decides just what doesn't go into the Daily—it is he who must ascertain whether a story is libelous or in violation of the Daily's stringent code of ethics.

The night editor is the correlating link between the composing room and his own staff, and at the same time he assumes responsibility for the sports and women's page copy. Deadline time—2:15 a.m.—finds the n.e. down in the shop directing the composition of his front page on the chase forms, approving last-minute headlines. Overtimes carry a stiff fine, but the night editor is ready until the last minute to remake his entire paper should a stop-press story come over the wire. During the first week of the war, when major news invariably broke late, the Daily n.e.s. held their page forms open until 3 a.m. and later to include latest war news in the newspaper which consistently has the latest deadline time of any daily paper in the State of Michigan.

Armed with a smile of their superiority, the women of the Daily graced the year with a most efficient style and a new rebellion over the traditional relegation of their position to one of assisting the men's staffs. Whether putting out the Women's Page or filing, typing and record-keeping, the women livened the usually dull routine of the year's work. One of their most comprehensive tasks, the presentation of the fall and spring style shows, effected an immediate contact of the students to the war through fashions. And turning on the glamor this year, the women's sales forces completely routed the men, and looking forward to another victory next autumn, the girls confidently flick the ashes from their cigarets and gaze out over their typewriters with that well-known sparkle in their eyes.

Editor-in-Chief

This year "Perspectives," edited by Jay McCormick as a supplement to the "Daily," completed its fifth successful season on campus. Featuring modern literature in poetry and prose, it appealed to both the literary intelligentsia, and common students, including the engineers. Its contributors, talented men of the student body, had their literary efforts in fields of essay, fiction, and poetry, illustrated by original etchings. Book reviews of the "new classics" to keep the busy college man posted on what's worth reading, were published, too. All was under the critical eye of the Advisory Board composed of prominent members of the Michigan faculty.

Much of its success was due to the fine work of Chan Simonds who maintained the Garg editorial tradition.

The Michigan Technic, publication of the University's College of Engineering, celebrated its sixtieth anniversary this year. Not only the oldest student publication on campus but also the oldest college engineering magazine in the country, the Technic has consistently won awards for its obvious merits during the past six decades. Most recent, that of "Best All-Around Maga-

Timely articles by professors, alumni, and students are featured, dealing with current problems, new methods and processes, and other information of interest to the engineering student. Among the distinguished contributors were Professor-Emeritus Goulding and Dean Crawford comparing the College, Past with Present. Colonel Miller wrote an exceedingly informative article about "The Revolution in Artillery" of especial interest to the present war-world.

MEN'S JUDICIAL COUNCIL

Made up of senior men who have worked in other activities, the Men's Judiciary Council functions primarily in making recommendations on disciplinary matters referred to it by deans of the respective schools, and by other University authorities. These recommendations are subject to final decision by the University Disciplinary Committee, a faculty group. The Council calls and supervises all student elections, with a few exceptions, in addition to considering petitions and making up the ballots; it regulates the initiations and general conduct of all men's honor societies, and establishes such rules as are deemed necessary concerning campus dances.

It is composed of seven seniors who are appointed each spring from those who petition for membership. The appointment committee consists of the managing editor of the Daily, the presidents of Congress, the Interfraternity Council, and the Union, the outgoing president of the Council, and the Dean of Students.

The Michigan Union occupies a unique position on campus, for its variegated character will not allow its classification into any one category. To the student body it represents a physical plant, amazing in its facilities for relaxation and recreation; a staff of activity men who form one of the most powerful single groups of undergraduates on the campus. To the professorial staff the Union suggests the University Club, an escape from classes and students, where bottle pool, coffee, good food, and talk reign supreme. For transients it is the best hotel in town. The plant includes a swimming pool with showers and steam baths, bowling alleys, a vast billiard and ping pong room, a barber shop, a tap room and cafeteria sacred to men alone, public and private dining rooms, and the Main Ballroom.

Probably no dance on campus gets the clever publicity build up that is annually accorded the Engineers big blow out, the Slide Rule Ball. When Daily Editors aren't arranging for the Committee to let the Lawyers steal their symbolic slide rule, thus starting a riot among two of the biggest schools on campus, they are coming forth with slide rule favors discovered behind secret panels and other such odd stunts. Despite their odd touch, however, these publicity stunts do stir up a lot of fun, and what's more important, they let the rest of the campus know about the biggest individual college dance in the University, the Slide Rule Ball. This year the sliderulers brought Bunny Berrigan as their musical attraction, and a record crowd of Engineers turned from their drafting boards and blueprints to crowd into the Union Ballroom to two-step the trumpeteers tempos sweet and swing.

The University Musical Society was organized in 1879 and incorporated in 1881 as a non-profit organization whose purpose was to provide good music for the members of the University and the community in general. It developed the Choral Union Chorus of three hundred voices and inaugurated the Choral Union Concert Series which has grown to include ten annual performances.

Since May, 1894, the series has been climaxed by the Annual May Festival, consisting now of six concerts given over a period of a few days. The concerts have presented the world's most distinguished musical artists, both vocal and instrumental, symphony orchestras, quartets, choral organizations, and other ensemble groups. As a result, the University audiences have been privileged to hear nearly the whole of musical literature.

The University Musical Society also developed, and until 1940, maintained and administered the School of Music, which was relinquished to the University at that time.

COLONEL WILLIAM A. GANOE
Chairman of Military Science and Tactics

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps gives opportunity for outstanding college men to obtain commissions in the armed services of their country. It is the chief element of our progress in military efficiency over World War I. Already the University of Michigan has furnished about 1500 officers for the Reserve Corps, many of whom are now in active service.

The course is divided into the Basic for freshmen and sophomores and Advanced Juniors and Seniors. Cadet Officers compose the Advanced Course and are selected from those who have completed the Basic Course. The two main criteria in the competition for the Advanced Course are all-round scholarship in the University and extra-curricular activities.

Those men who fail to attain the Advanced Course but have successfully completed the Basic, are tendered warrants in diploma form, which are helpful in gaining recognition and promotion, if the student is taken into the service as an enlisted man.

The entire course at the University of Michigan lays emphasis upon inspiring teaching methods, illustration and demonstration predominating. The drill of two hours per week constitutes a laboratory for that type of practical and sympathetic leadership of human beings, which has proven thoroughly beneficial in any walk of life, especially in emergencies. Seniors are captains and first lieutenants; juniors, second lieutenants; and sophomores, non-commissioned officers. These cadet officers and non-commissioned are left free to handle their units without interference. The maximum responsibility and authority are placed on all of them. All good points of the men in ranks are those of the commanders of the units. Guidance to Cadet Officers is imparted at a distance from the drill ground and floor.

Official color guard of University of Michigan's Reserve Officers Training Corps commands added significance in this year of war.

1 The rapidly expanding medical corps has given probationary commissions to all junior and senior students in the medical school. They'll soon be leading this work in the field. 2 The heart and manpower of the Army is found in the infantry, which trains its cadet officers to utilize the maximum firepower in the most effective fashion. Tactical exercises in the Arboretum provide simulated war conditions in which cadets gain experience. 3 Providing and maintaining weapons such as these for the Army is the task of the ordnance corps. Drawing its cadets from the Engineering College, it gives them specialized training in arsenal and chemical warfare work. 4 Essential in keeping contact between headquarters and outposts, the Signal Corps through its communication systems gives the modern army the high maneuverability it requires. The strategy of victory is planned from the reports and effected by the orders transmitted by the corps to the field of battle. 5 To the engineering corps falls the task of adapting the terrain to the purposes of war; aiding its advancing units and obstructing the enemy. Building and destroying bridges and fortifications constitute much of its work. How do you like the modern trenching techniques of these cadet officers?

N.R.O.T.C.

Captain R. E. Cassidy, U.S.N.

THE Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps, missing by a year the brand of a war baby, is in its second year on the Michigan campus, and commanded by Captain R. E. Cassidy, USN, who relieved Captain L. A. Davidson, USN, it is now preparing men for an active career in the U. S. War effort.

These men of the V-1 and V-7 classifications stepped forth in full regalia for the Navy Day inspection by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, now Commander-in-chief, Pacific Fleet. Then with the announcement of the Color Company Competition, focal point of all N.R.O.T.C. battalion activity, the corps put added effort into the company drills, individual and company marksmanship, and sailing, skills on which the award is based. Inter-platoon, and inter-company sailing regattas, gun loading and firing crews all took part in the competition.

The increased tempo of the N.R.O.T.C. courses held to a minimum the social activity of the unit, but correspondingly added to the significance of the rifle matches and practical experience of the men. Yet there was found time to issue in its second year the Michigan Pelorus, one of the outstanding N.R.O.T.C. publications in the country.

The war is close to these students in the N.R.O.T.C. battalion and in a short time they will be graduated to the battle line of the sea.

Fifty members of the N.R.O.T.C. unit took the cruise last summer on the U.S.S. Dover. The Dover visited a number of Ports in Lake Erie including Toledo, Cleveland and Put-in-Bay, and during the cruise, the cadet's knowledge of seamanship, learned from books in the college course, was given practical application. Instructions in practical seamanship, small boat handling, gunnery, and ship handling were given. After two weeks afloat, all hands returned to civilian life bronzed and healthy from the rugged shipboard life.

Performing useful service to the University, the youth and community, its members and the nation, is the role undertaken by Alpha Phi Omega, national honorary service fraternity for former boy scouts. Formally founded only two years ago, the Michigan chapter has already established a record for beneficial service. Originating and launching the Bomber-Scholarship drive, conducting the annual spring "Keep off the Grass" campaign, aiding in civilian fingerprinting and participating in the Union guide service are but examples of the extensive work the members of Alpha Phi Omega accomplish.

Sponsors of the Winter and Spring Parleys, the Senate has also been instrumental in investigating library lighting conditions and conducting surveys of student workers' hours and wages. Meetings are held bimonthly and are open to the entire student body, for the Senate is the Michigan organ of student opinion.

PHI ETA SIGMA

The Student Religious Association, established by the University to aid students in understanding religion in theory and practice, is now in its fifth year on the University of Michigan campus—five years of continuous growth in service and influence on student thought.

Oriental, Catholic, Jewish and Protestant students participate in those aspects of the program which suit their special needs. The activities of the S.R.A. provide an environment in which students with widely different social and religious backgrounds can meet naturally to work together on matters of common concern. The wide range of points of view represented and the vigor and clarity with which they are presented, make the meetings sponsored by the Association some of the most stimulating educational activities available for students.

The lectures sponsored by the Association bring to the Campus nationally known religious representatives of many faiths, recognized for their scholarly contributions to religious thought. The discussion groups deal with those religious issues which are of most concern to students, meeting under student leadership with the help of competent faculty advisors. Those who wish to make a detailed study of religion may take part in seminars which continue throughout the year. A considerable number of students work on social service projects, publications, and cooperative activities with the twenty student religious groups on the campus.

Lane Hall, the home of the S.R.A., provides a good library of religious books, a collection of recordings of religious music, many reproductions of famous religious paintings, and facilities for student meetings.

Cross section of S.R.A. activity: all faiths, every creed combine in the discussion groups, recorded concerts of religious music and Friday afternoon Coffee hours.

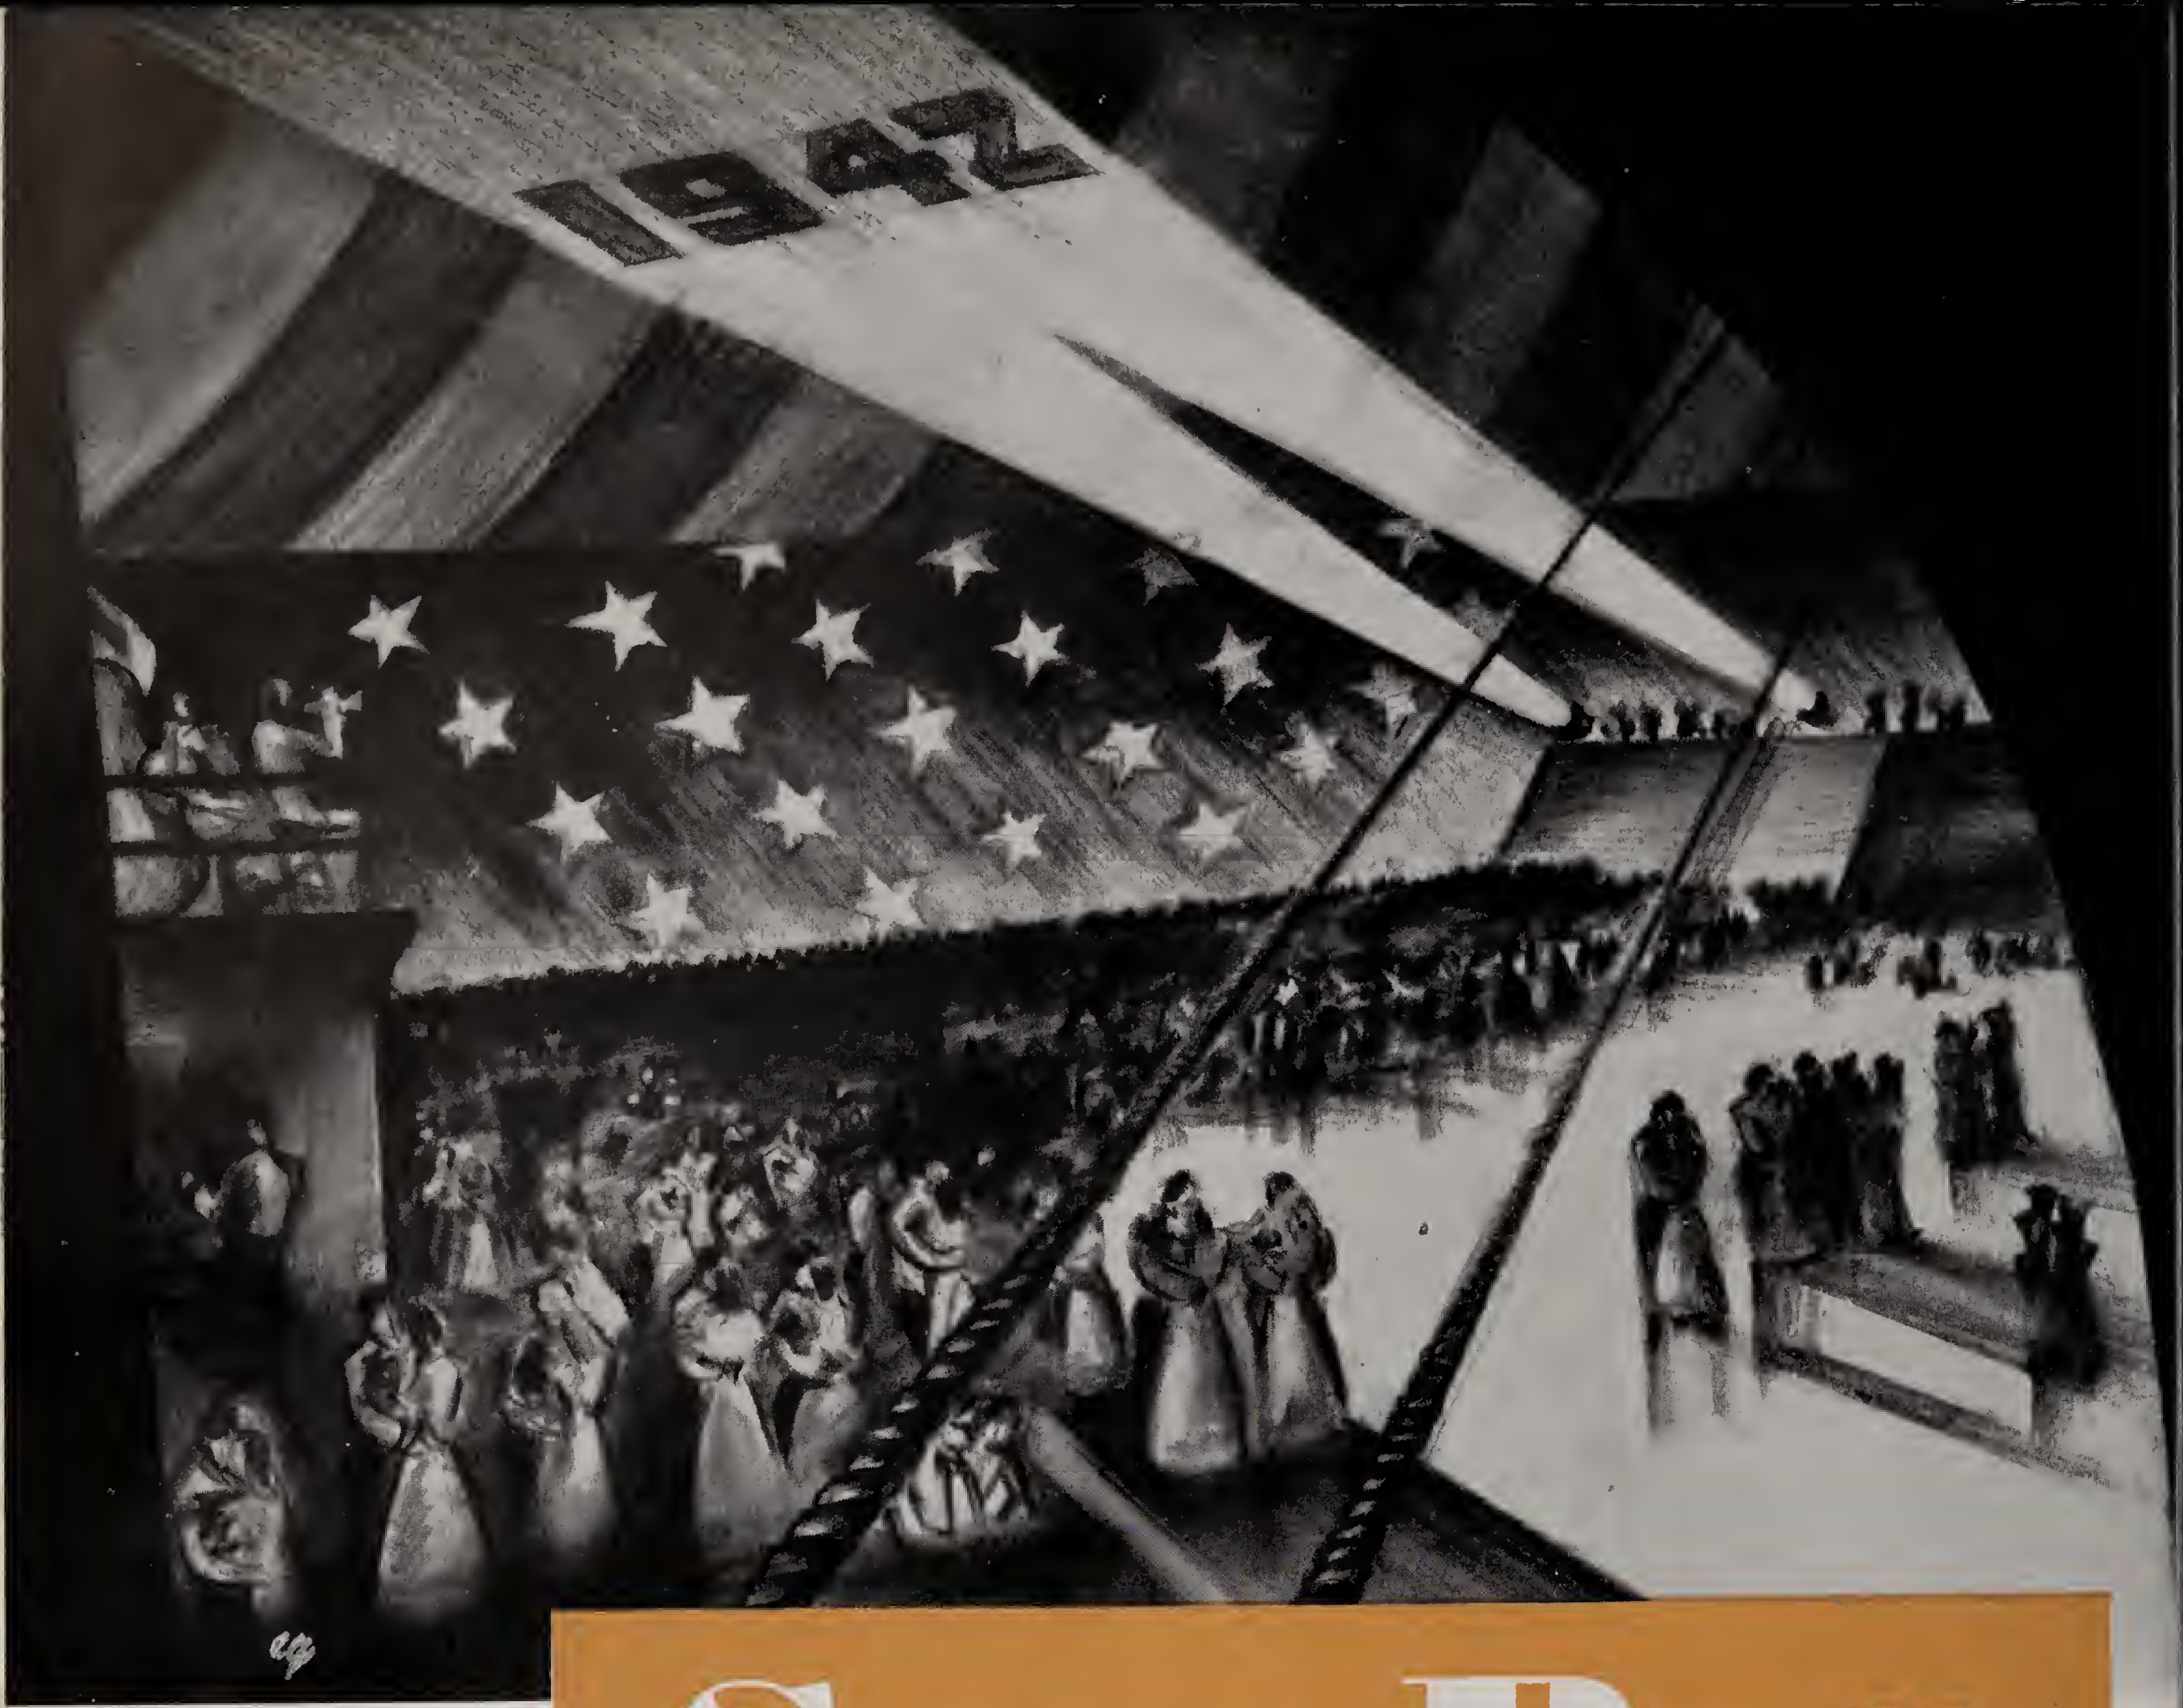
DR. T. LUTHER PURDOM

JOBS and services have keynoted the year at Michigan, and many of them are focused in the Bureau of Appointments and Occupational Information. Here students have found particular aid in finding their own places in the nation's, as well as the University's, war efforts.

The Bureau's work is carried out in three phases: the Guidance Division, assisting in occupational and personal adjustments; the General Placement Division, which arranges meetings between students or graduates and employers; and the Teaching Division, which places Education graduates throughout the country.

Bureau of Appointments

Under the direction of Dr. T. Luther Purdom, the Bureau of Appointments established in 1927 has expanded to such an extent that a great proportion of University students come in contact with it each year. With the recent increased development of business and industry, the Bureau is invaluable in fitting students to their niche in the cog of war machinery.



Senior Ball

"When bigger and better Senior Balls are thrown the Seniors will throw them." So said Tommy Williams, the Slide Rule Splash King, who turned politician and wound up at the head of this year's big Senior dance.

Since the Ensian goes to press long before Senior Ball, we can't reveal the band selected to play at the dance. But since the last two Senior Balls have had Glenn Miller, we can predict that this year's party certainly will not have a better band, that is, unless Stanislos Leshinxy can be induced to bring his Hungarian 18 out of exile in West Hoboken. Another thing is quite certain! This year's Senior Ball will not have a Japanese Garden, as have several in the past. In other words, it is safe to predict that this year's dance will be different.

Seriously, though, Tommy Williams and his gang are already starting to work and the current Senior Ball should turn out to be a star-studded affair, despite the necessary absence of many of the peacetime decorative luxuries enjoyed in the past. Uncertain for months as to whether conditions would permit a Senior Ball, the committee has finally gotten the go sign and promises a thoroughly enjoyable evening for all.

J-Hop

The biggest social Event of the Year was J-Hop. The Junior Class and its J-Hop Chairman Ted Sharpe outdid themselves to present a bigger and better musical extravaganza. The shortened semester forced a last minute change in plans for the big dance, and for a while it looked as though we would end up with Holy Smoly and his Clambake Seven, but things finally straightened themselves out, Sharpe's hair changed back to its usual color, and the country's only two-day, three-band College Prom went on as planned. As some 2800 starry eyed swingeroos, decked out in formal attire elbowed their way onto the spacious floor of the expansive sports building, Orrin Tucker husked a bushel, and the dance was begun. Alternating with Orrin was the one and only Jimmy Lunceford, of "It Ain't What You Do But the Way What You Do It" fame. His mellow rendition of "Blues in the Night" completely sold the Michigan jazeroos on the colored maestro and his all-college swing band.

On Saturday night the theme was deformalized and the shorter skirts were accompanied by Les Brown's new orchestra. Combining his novelty arrangements with a super new style, and a smooth sax section, Brown completely captivated the ginger ale soaked hep cats who braved a second day of bad weather, house parties, and sleepless fat-i-gue to strut before the Blue Devil Maestro.

National Defense was the theme of decoration. A huge spangle-studded Eagle watched the affair from his perch at the far end of the gym while red, white, and blue streamers added further color.

Probably the flashiest of all the campus dances this year was the Sophomore Prom. Due to the fact that all arrangements were made before we plunged into total war, the decorative scheme was designed along lavish peacetime lines. December 12 was the date, and the whole program was built around a mythical New Year's Eve. Twelve o'clocks in New York, Chicago, Denver, and Wynsocki were rung out at hourly intervals with noise-makers, streamers, balloons, and confetti turning the place into a frenzied turmoil, as Sunny Dunham hit the first note of Auld Lang Syne. Sunny's new band was terrific. When he hit high C on that famous trumpet of his, Chairman Chuck Dotterrer expected the chandeliers to shatter, but it was only the spot light operator's daughter, who was hanging by a fingernail after leaning over the balcony too far to see who Chuck's date was. All in all the dance was a bang-up success, and it was with a great deal of regret that the couples filed out of their mythical New Year's celebration into the dreary December dawn, as the last strains of Memories of You, Dunham's popular theme, poured out of the Union ballroom.

COMMITTEE—Charles Dotterrer, General Chairman; Nancy Hattersley, Patrons; Phyllis Present, Programs; Ralph Beuhler, Finance; Jack Hooper, Music; Dick Emery, Music; Stan Glassman, Decorations; Hal Cooper, Publicity; Martin Feferman, Tickets.

Red Norvo, his band, and his box of sticks made one of their frequent appearances on the Michigan front line social ladder when they breezed into town for the Frosh Debut, annual coming out party for the Freshman Class. The Debut was held in the Union Ballroom amid a plantation scene conveying the splendor of an old Southern mansion. Head Colonel of the dance was Steve Selby, who courted Nan Jewell on his Southern arm.

The freshmen turned out strong for their initial class stomp, but many revellers in the form of upperclassmen also attended to make the dance a thoroughly successful affair. Juleps were spiritless, but nevertheless the usual formality, friendliness, and gayety of the Old South were well expressed as Norvo's Dixie Drummer beat out a hot southern jam in the best cannibal style. Chivalry is not dead, at least not among the beaux and belles of the Class of '45.

Michigan League

Beehive of women's activities is the Michigan League. Around the queenbee, Margaret Sanford, swarm the busy little workers spreading their honey hither, thither, and yon. Junior Job, Junior Job, Junior Job hum the little stingers as they flit from committee to committee, from point to point. All this confusion is but a day in the activity of the League.

The Lydia Mendelssohn Theater on the second floor houses Play Production, the Union Opera, Junior Girls Play, and any other theatrical productions staged on campus. The beehive theme of the League is carried on in the honey-comb of dressing rooms, make-up stalls, and wardrobe closets that wind around the back of the theater.

LEAGUE COUNCIL

Prexy Sanford to admire.
She achieved what all aspire.

The League Council controls all women's campus activities, which control all the leading women, who control all the women, who control the campus in general. 1942 has been a big year for the council, which has undertaken many important projects including the organization of all defense activities for women. This includes defense courses, blood donations (?), and jiu-jitsu to be used on dates who refuse to cooperate with the council's much heralded 12:30 curfew.

The Council also financed the presentation of "George Washington Slept" at Camp Custer. This item has been pending since last December, but the presses simply will not wait any longer. We must assume that they did finally send the play.

The Council not only takes this active part in the running of campus affairs, but they also approve all appointments for the various women's activities. The girls are responsible for the operation of the candy booth in U. Hall, so don't be too severe in your opinion of them, fellows, even if they did shorten the hours.

JUDICIARY COUNCIL

That black-robed inquisition board of five stern, unsmiling women, which holds meetings in a darkened room in the League, is the Women's Judiciary Committee. "Judish" is the better known name for the council which deals with lateness cases in a probationary sort of way, giving 8:45 week-end permission for the lighter offenses. They quiz you like a Poli. Sci. prof. when you're quilty of disturbing the dormitory quiet hours and ask "What is your experience?" and "Have you any plans?" every time you petition for the patrons chairman's job on the Second Semester Freshman Hop. Chief inquisitor of this sinister group is "Six gun" Baits. To be thrown in her path is a fate faced by many a minor offender. Daniel himself when thrown to the lions, is rumored to have muttered, "This a thousand times, but not Jane Baits!" This same Jane Baits may not be a lioness in sheep's clothing, but she is unquestionably the most absolute student leader on campus. Upon Jane, and the awe-inspiring quintet she heads, falls the disciplinary duties governing 3000 women.

Laughing though she looks today,
She will make you mend your way!

Know ye, by their square heads, these women are B.W.O.C.'s, newly initiated into the society of the intellectually elite known as Mortarboard. Each spring the old Mortars tap the little Mortars at the League's Installation Banquet.

Mortarboard is a national organization for senior women with high scholastic averages and outside activities. Two big social functions are annually sponsored by the "board." One is the "Smarty Party" for sophomores with 3.5 averages (all five of them). And the other is "Pay Off," the annual dance whereat the girls return the favor to their J-Hop dates. This year's "Pay Off" was a wow! J-Hop had Les Brown, Jimmy Lunceford, and Orrin Tucker. "Pay Off" had Joe, the record changer. Such gratitude! What a pay-off! In Confederate money!

Another activity was added this year when the various girls' honor societies got together and did some pre-Christmas caroling.

Cocked cap, bright grin,
Smart gal wins pin.

The patter of tiny feet, Peter Pan collar, huge blue bow . . . not James James Morrison Morrison, but a senior gal joining her sisters of the society. It's the annual Installation Banquet and Senior Society is tap-tapping its new members. And said members are the leaders on campus among independent women. Scholastics, activities, service, they tackle everything and leave no project unturned in their wake. What their treasury conceals, let no one ask, but if it's carnations to sell or collars to rent, an S. S. representative will be on hand to serve you.

Ably led in their path of work without rest by "Scotty," these girls exemplify the utmost in consuming drive . . . not always without purpose. Membership in Senior Society is one of the highest honors an independent woman can achieve on campus. And we think the group deserves the blue ribbon for being one of the few groups on campus to accomplish anything.

Peter Pan collar, big blue bow, It's Senior Society, don'tcha know!

WYVERN

When the lengthy band of yellow-hair-bowed women marches right in the front door singing "To hell with Sphinx and Druid too!", it's Wyvern tapping junior women outstanding on campus in service, scholarship, and leadership. Probably the only organization whose main function is performed during the summer, Wyvern members write letters to the women freshmen-to-be holders of Michigan Alumni scholarships explaining the hither and yons of college life.

One of the newest organizations on campus, Scroll is the sorority woman's bid for fame. Honorary for activities and scholarship, we have here another senior honor society. The members "march at night with hearts aglow" and academic gowns flapping to tap worthy juniors. And these lucky girls arise early the next morning to be initiated in the court of the League while gray dawn creeps over the garden walls.

Each dormitory and League house elects one, and when you put them all together they spell Assembly Board. It directs the activities of independent women . . . the more activity the better. Each representative has a committee under her to form an integrating link between the League and the underclass woman, but not completely pleased with the enthusiasm of independents, the Board formed a Scouting Committee this year. Under an appointed chairman, the committee is the spur to the side of the dorm-dweller, and they roam corridors with sheaves of petitions and lists of positions in their hands.

Another group eager to provide fishes for the fountain or to send books to Custer, they choose a worthy project each year. When the matter of funds raised its hairy head, the girls sold tickets to the dramatic series, on the regulation 10% basis, and then gave their money to the League scholarship fund.

If you're shy of activities, run, rabbit, run . . . 'cause they'll get you if you don't watch out. But when time for Assembly Ball or Banquet rolls 'round, the Board displays a splendid capacity for organizing matters efficiently.

Comedy and tragedy reigned over the annual Assembly Banquet. It was, you see, chiefly a report on scholarship and . . . well, not all of us are Phi Bete material. The Drama, though, was the theme of the affair, and that explains the presence of the two large masks, one smiling, the other distorted with grief.

"Assembly raised the curtain" on the winners of all the various scholarship and activity awards, and the usual speeches ensued. Dean Lloyd spoke once more on women in defense, and of course, as in all productions, at length the curtain fell upon the extravaganza in the League ballroom.

Glittering with colored spotlights, hanging crystal globes, and fluttering feminine flounces, Assembly Ball blossomed forth this spring under supervision of the central committee of eleven. Two giant replicas of Assembly's triangular symbol clung to the walls, and campus notables decorated a charmingly furnished patrons' corner.

Bernie Cummins played on an awninged bandstand, and he threw in a floorshow at 12:00 with scarcely any extra charge to the committee, which had waited half an hour for its touted band leader to arrive from the Union.

Composed of three delegates from each sorority on campus, Panhellenic Association is a group of amazing size. Quite filling the Grand Rapids room of the League when they meet, Panhel regulates all rushing activities of the houses. Promoting good will among all women on campus is one of the avowed aims of the association, and it is alert to perceive niches where it can do its Girl Scout deed for the day. This year the girls purchased curtains for the stage at the recreational hall of the Red Cross hospital at Fort Custer. To assure the success of Cavalleria Rusticana and VanPaasen's lecture, both benefit performances, the girls bought scads of tickets and gave them to each sorority house. In all, the group is the Greek guardian goddess of all her brood of eighteen houses.

Sorority crests on every cloud and "sloppy joes" on every angel . . . it was a Panhel heaven just behind the pearly gates of the League. The committee of nine archangels established the atmosphere, and when they had it finished, shure 'twas Panhellenic Banquet! Food came first, and then Dean "Gabriel" Lloyd blew a silver trumpet about a major topic at hand, women in defense. The Panhel scholarship cup was awarded to Delta Gamma for the second consecutive year, and a talk on the subject obligingly given by Mr. Ira Smith. The scholarship reports of all the sororities completed the program of the event.

Ancient Greece, white columns, and swingin' jive! The Pantheon in the League ballroom! Let none underestimate the abilities of a Panhel committee! And they probably got it all from an oracle near Delphi.

Each pillar bore the symbol of a sorority, and the orchestra held sway on the reconstructed Pantheon. Athenian citizens never heard PeeWee Erwin, but his music was o.k. to the crowd at Panhel Ball as painted Dianas waltzed and swung with their padded Apollos.

The 1942 J. G. P. production, "No Questions Asked," was a humorous takeoff on Mrs. Roosevelt tearing across the country looking for her lost Girl Scout merit badge. Kay Ruddy and Allen Axelrod wrote the original script, which had no resemblance to the finished product. Mary Ellen Wheeler handled the directing, and Mary Lou Ewing was general chairman of the affair. The string of double-talk promoters, producers, and players was continued with another Mary Lou, Curran by name, who played the lead as Mrs. Roosevelt. Lucille Katz and Frances Hull played the Girl Scout sub-leads. Choruses flitted on and off the stage in quick succession and provided the biggest laughs in the three day show. Programs were miniature newspapers featuring Eleanor's "My Day."

"Northland needs you and your drive,
Southland needs your swingin' jive,
No questions asked!"

Off the cutting room floor in Ye Old Barbour office comes another J. G. P. script. Don't look so stunned, Mary Ellen, they'll improve.

Sure, we all have a yen once in a while to write, but these women are really doing it! They're majors in the School of Journalism, and these are the best of them all. Chosen for high scholastic achievement, they are a chapter of a national fraternity of sob-sisters.

Though they eye each robin as a feature, and make NEWS out of everything, they find time to hear other people's views. Every month speakers are invited to chatter to the group . . . writers, photographers, anyone with the call of the Press in their ears. The faculty often speaks its mind at informal coffee hours, and the super-function of each year is the Matrix Table. Alums from miles come to talk shop, an outstanding woman in the field presents her success story, and fortified with an abundant meal, the Ladies of the Press revel in an atmosphere heavy with printer's ink.

They may not contribute to Perspectives, but when better columns are written, these are the girls who will write them!

There's music on the breeze when these girls gather, and it's quite explainable, for each is a music major of B plus scholastic average. They meet weekly in the League, and they hold musicales once a month, just to satiate their yearning for melody.

Members are pledged into the local chapter of this national sorority, and they work without "discord," "harmoniously" accompanying each other at recitals and without "sharp" words working routines out "flat," which is as it should be "naturally."

Through honorary memberships the girls claim such luminaries as Deanna Durbin, Lily Pons, and buxom Miss Flagstad as sisters. Really, Sigma Alpha Iota is an efficient group of members related through their major field of interest.

A forbidding group to get in an argument with, Zeta Phi Eta is composed of speech majors and minors. The members are chosen by tryouts, and the emoting would-be Bernhardts must qualify on their own abilities. "Speech finely framed delighteth the ears," and crowds gather bi-weekly to hear the music of Lambda chapter.

The brave boys of Alpha Nu sometimes challenge the Zetas in debate and . . . well you know who has the last word. The girls give skits for their professors, and coffee hours after some of the plays in Mendellsohn. To augment their funds they sponsor bridge parties, and of course it's then that their best talking is done.

In answer to the greatest demand on the part of American women Zeta Phi Eta was the first professional women's organization in the United States, and is the only national speech fraternity for women. Its real purpose continues after graduation, for it lends professional aid to its erstwhile members. "A band of selected students interested in maintaining high standards of speech" . . . what possibilities we must offer to these aspiring reformers!

ATHENA

Another group of speakers, Athena attempts to achieve "proficiency in public speaking" through the back door. Rather than talking before a mirror each morning, the girls find things to talk about. Primarily a literary society, it is of local standing only, having no antecedents in Greece. Having no scholastic average "musts," members are chosen for their congeniality and general interests, whether they are in art, music, or purely oratorical.

One of the institutions at the Michigan League has always been the afternoon coke date, wherein the very busy girl gives five minutes of her oh-so-valuable time between League meetings to Joe Steady, the lucky fellow who has smoothed up for this glorious "pause that refreshes." Alas and alack, "them days are gone forever." Cokes are scarce, the pauses are scarcer, and business has gone back to the golf course where it was before League women took it away from their fathers.

women's athletic association

Modern annex to time-worn Barbour Gym, the Women's Athletic Building hides a wealth of facilities behind its classic pillars. Michigan women toss balls down the gutters of bowling alleys here, sock golf balls at targets, tug at bow-strings, squint down rifle sights, and bat at ping-pong pills. On Palmer Field, adjoining the building, they cavort at badminton, race around at hockey, and the sixteen tennis courts are always filled in good weather with both experts and novice ball-chasers. And when the girls are exhausted, the building beckons with a sunny terrace, comfortable lounges on the second floor, and ample shower and locker rooms.

When the long sought for women's swimming pool is constructed, it will probably be at the W.A.B., but until that momentous time . . . every Thursday is ladies night at the Union pool.

The Women's Athletic Association, student group sponsored by the Department of Physical Education for Women, promotes all sports activities on campus, and organizes the various clubs. The association is a committee of the League, and like all major committees is represented on the Council by its president . . . a particularly responsible position in this day of national emergency and weighty local decisions. A symposium of club leaders, W.A.A. governs "amazons at play."

"Over hill, over dale, as they hit the dusty trail." Who said the cavalry was a thing of the past? Why Michigan 75th, better known as Crop and Saddle, is just getting started! "She was only the stableman's daughter, but all the horsewomen knew her" is the slogan of this group of loping Amazons who gallop over hill and dale . . . dragging their horses behind them.

Mary Hayden, president of the rugged outdoor group, has built the girls up into quite a fine "cavalry unit." The girls meet Wednesday at the Golfside Riding Academy, curry their horses, curry each other, and then, pretty as a picture, they canter out over the countryside or into the barn, depending on weather conditions and all that sort of thing.

All jibing aside, though, the girls are selected on merit alone, and each spring they put on quite a little horse show. Classes have expert instruction and are organized according to the experience of the members. The club points toward first-class horsemanship combined with good sport.

AMAZONS AT PLAY

Women's sport activities at the University center about the Physical Education department and the majors in the field, who regularly play field hockey in the cold mists of early morning. But anyone who wants to stir her lethargic self into action or increase her hemoglobin content is encouraged to play with the girls. Thirteen clubs are organized for everything from riding to leather-craft, and inter-house contests incite the victor impulse. Competition with other schools is limited (we're anemic, you know), but every year there are "play days" with Michigan State and Ohio State.

W. A. A. sponsors a project each year, until now to raise funds for the elusive women's pool, which bids fair to rival Paul Bunyan in middlewestern mythology. In view of the current drive to "build up American womanhood," however, the project this year resolved into a three-night "Rec Rally" early in April. Exercises, posture contests, grooming lectures, and a night of corecreation did everything possible to tempt the Michigan coed into action and to put the color in her cheeks.

Lantern night is also backed by the association, and is one of the more colorful campus traditions. But literally, for on an early summer's night seniors are escorted to Palmer Field by underclassmen carrying varicolored, lighted lanterns. The lengthy train snakes its way from the library steps to the Field, and an all-campus women's sing follows. Trick arrangements and prized soloists are displayed for the audience crouching on the hillside and for the judges who award the coveted silver cup.

Off the shimmering ice . . . Betty Jane Courtright shows how.

The prone position . . . straight shooters always win.

Oh for a pin! The balloon relay race in the inter-house swimming meet.

Gutter snipe . . .

It'll loosen muscles . . . or bust 'em!

PALMER FIELD offers lots of "wide open spaces" to gambol in, both for team sports and individual games. One can practice drives without hitting anything except a window of Mosher or a lens of the observatory, and if the archers are rather accomplished, the nurses scarcely have to worry at all.

It's guaranteed to be fun, come over and take a workout! Enough oxygen and your hemoglobin will be up to Red Cross standards in no time at all . . . warning, don't overdo it at first, or the Red Cross will be doling blood out to you.

The staff of the department is most proficient, and they cheerfully render advice to blundering beginners. The freshmen are obliged to sample the ware of the department for a year, but many upperclassmen would profit by shivering their timbers on a tennis court twice a week.

Perhaps not all we read is propaganda—think of our waistlines after a month of regular exercise beyond roving the diag . . . over and above our health rating.

Velvet greens, long fairways, and a tremendous drive in the making!

1 This is no stag party . . . Balloon dance, Club 44 style, at this year's Soph Prom. 2 Browne and Lewis pose for our cameraman before taking the rostrum for their debate on "It Can't Happen Here", one of the low spots of our regular lecture series at Hill Auditorium. 3 The big Defense Rally had as its principal speaker Governor Murray D. Van Waggoner. 4 The Paul Bunyan Formal is a field day for screwballs. Pat Heyl and Burly Bill Shoedinger were no exception as they rode around the ballroom on this bicycle built for two. 5 Panhellenic Banquet, annual affair for sorority girls. The speakers' table includes left to right, Dean Alice Lloyd, Chairman Virginia Morse, Registrar Ira Smith, and Virginia Osgood.

1 Leap Year for a day—Sophisticated Syncopation at the Panhellenic Ball. This is the big party for sorority women. 2 This is no bowling alley. It's just the pony line rehearsing for the Union Opera, Full House. The ponies are Bud Sykes, John Wason, Hal Schulhof, Ed Whalen, Bruce Mayper, and a smarter chorus I never hope to see. 3 Santa has nothing on Bob Westfall, All-American idol of the Ann Arbor kids. When they found out it was "Westy" and not Santa they cheered even louder. All this went on at the annual Christmas party given by the I. F. C. for the youngsters in town. 4 This started out to be an interclass water polo game between the freshmen and sophomores. The game was called on account of darkness—about the eyes. 5 Eating your cake and keeping it too. That special private party before the Interfraternity Ball. 6 "Damn, Damn, Damn, to Michigamua" Wyvern taps a prospective member. The four girls pictured here are Janet Lewin, Barbara deFries, Marjorie Storkan, and Jane Honey.

1 "Casey would waltz . . . " but this couple would rather look at the program. Resting in between dances at the formal half of J-Hop, and no wonder! Standing in line for a ticket, cleaning the fraternity for a house party, moving furniture down to the I-M Building, meeting your date's train at some unearthly hour, struggling into some friend's starched collar that's far too small, and finally fighting your way onto the dance floor which has 3000 milling around propelled by the jive of two bands alternating without let-up. Brother, you can sit one out for me too! The big affair is here but we don't blame you for stopping to catch your breath for the rush of excitement to follow. It's worth it! Or is it?

2 J-Hop is just "Arsenic and Old Lace" to this other couple who splintered their feet at the Hobo Hop. Informal dances of this kind were especially popular this year. First the Paul Bunyan Formal outdrew Panhell Ball on the same night and then these "hoboes" took over.

1 A big week-end for Radio Cab. Couples arriving at the informal half of J-Hop Saturday night. 2 It's listening time for the girls and looking time for the boys as Orrin Tucker's torrid singer warms up to the crowd. 3 On Saturday evening it was Les Brown with his sensational new band. Super arrangements and novelty were mixed to a degree pleasing everyone from Chairman Ted Sharpe right on down to Wilber McWheelbase of Kokomo, Indiana who came stag because he likes gingerale. 4 Across the dance floor from Tucker, Jimmie Lunceford captivated J-Hoppers with his superb renditions of "Blues in the Night," "T'ain't What You Do," and many of his other famous arrangements 5 "After the Ball is Over"—Good-night, laddies, we've had a simply won-der-ful time! 6 How did they sneak in here again? Hoboes lounging on the hardwoods continue to show complete scorn for J-Hop.

1 Shortly after the war began an All-Campus Defense Rally was scheduled to help the students make necessary wartime adjustments. Among the speakers were our President, Dr. Ruthven, Dean Bursley, and Dean Lloyd. 2 The Congressional Medal of Honor was bestowed posthumously on Marine Corps Lieutenant George H. Cannon, former Michigan student. 3 Jack Henderson makes his heart beat for an Army doctor. He's in the Army now, so I guess that he was all right on the downbeat, despite that frightened look. 4 Motor Mechanics loom big on the Red Cross calendar. Senior women learn the ins and outs of everything from spark-plugs to fender crinkles. 5 There's nothing like knowing what the other fellows are talking about. New defense courses at the University include Japanese. We'll speak their language if it kills them.

1 Hogan's Alley would love this. Dye Hogan, track star, senior president, and campus big shot of two years ago goes right ahead despite the new defense curfew which is supposed to do away with this sort of thing. 2 Going up where it's really cold! C.A.A. training is a valuable part of defense training, and cold weather doesn't stop Uncle Sam! 3 Defense courses include the curricula set up for the new 90-day wonder treatment for Army Ordnance applicants. It's thorough despite its brevity, however, and the entrance requirements are nobody's pipe.

1 Slap that bass—Jazz up that action, buddy . . . the Druids are tapping, and none too gently. Men work for years to get into these honor societies and look what happens. Each spring strange groups of wild looking characters can be seen sending a new crop of BMOCs through some such medieval torture as that pictured here. Arch Druid John Gillis leads his band of senior big shots around the symbolic oak representing Druid strength as the newly tapped juniors "Buckle Down Winsocki!"

2 Basketball may not be Michigan's favorite indoor game, but it is certainly one of the contenders. Here Michigan's Captain Cartmill goes up for a high one which he takes on the rebound from a rangy Hawkeye.

1 With Spring comes Ann Arbor at its best. Even approaching final exams can't cast their melancholia over "Double A" once the long winter breaks, the ice melts, and the trees blossom forth in the balmy spring air. State Street is brighter as coatless coeds enter their favorite cafe or soda bar for that between-class coke.

2 Sailing too is popular here in the Spring. The Sailing Club sponsors intramural competition on Lake Whitmore to entice students interested in the sporting canvas of a full sail.

3 As evening approaches we see couples, their shoulders again covered, crossing the diag for a few hours of important study in the library.

4 With Spring also comes romance! Two subjects willingly posed for our cameraman at "The Island." The Huron in Spring—just before it drys up—beautiful? AND THEN FINALS!

1 Finale to a college career. Silhouetted against the uncertain clouds that now envelope the world, these symbolic figures represent thousands like them who regretfully leave Ann Arbor, its traditions, its trials, and its good times after four glorious years which will glow in memory for the rest of their lives. Spring is waning and with it the Class of '42. Her members have left but her memories will live on indefinitely in the archives of the class. 2 With all the pageantry of the Crusaders of old, the seniors doll up in their best bib and mortarboard and march around the campus. The band leads the procession of prospective graduates who line up by schools for the big parade. Different colored tassels identify the schools as do other symbols such as the big slide-rule carried by the senior officers in the Engineering College. 3 After Swing-out is over the parade breaks up into various groups which lope down to the local taverns for friendly little farewell gatherings. Four great years covering every problem conceivable are discussed over the amber brew as the prospective graduate reminisces with his friends. Groups similar to this form at every table and it is with no little sorrow that they must break up when the Big Bell rings for the last time.

INTER FRATERNITY COUNCIL

Working as coordination center for the many fraternities on the campus, the Interfraternity Council serves a truly useful purpose. The council is composed of a senior president and secretary, a fifteen man Junior Staff and a Sophomore staff consisting of one representative from each fraternity.

Among the many activities included in the scope of the council's work are the Children's Christmas Party, the IFC Ball, the Interfraternity Sing, Greek Week, and Pledge Banquet. This year the council has taken on added work due to the war. Plans for group buying and other time and money saving projects are being considered; through such coordinated projects the Michigan fraternities should be able to face the future with confidence.

DEAR SIR:

I believe you created a slight confusion by the picture you printed last week in the article about me (See above). I wish to state at this time that Miss Curdes is not now, and has never been associated with me in the capacity of my mother. Trusting you will correct your error, I remain

Dear Sir:

Possibly your criticism of the Union Opera this year was almost just, but I think it was extremely unfair of your reviewer to judge the entire play on the basis of the first night. We say it again, you should have seen the second night.

Yours truly,
DON WEST,
Publicity Chairman,

No Tyrant She

Dear Sir:

We think it was completely nasty of you to say such terrible things about Jane Baits in your last issue. You may call her a tyrant if you will, but any Delta Gamma will tell you that Miss Baits has never done any more than her duty as head of Women's Judiciary Committee. As for your insinuating that Miss Baits has the D. G.'s, well, it's a lie.

Yours in a huff,

DOING HIS BIT TO KEEP UP CIVILIAN MORALE WHILE ALL OTHERS ARE LOSING THEIR HEADS ABOUT THEM, GORDON HARDY, UNIVERSITY'S ACE BANDLEADER, GOES ON WITH TRYING TO GET "BUSINESS AS USUAL" AS HE COKES WITH JOAN MCGRATH. HARDY ENJOYS THE REPUTATION OF BEING ONE OF THE CAMPUS ACE SALESMEN, USUALLY SWINGS HIS CONTRACTS FOR SORORITY DANCES BY HAVING A WEE ONE WITH THE SOCIAL CHAIRMAN (MISS MCGRATH IS FROM LATE, GREAT CHI OMEGA).

Speaking of Pictures

WAR and wartime came to Ann Arbor with a terrible suddenness, instilled a new resolve and determination into students who resolved and determined to do their bit, put their shoulders to the wheel of civilian defense effort, drink their coffee even without sugar if necessary.

Hard-hitting faculty members hit upon the idea of starting a Committee of 42—so-called because of its 42 members—making it entirely student initiated, giving to its members the power of making it the Committee of 43 if another member was deemed necessary—with the approval of the hard-hitting faculty members.

Not stopping at this small sacrifice—their time for work, the women students—more particularly, the League Council—initiated a plan coming from the Dean's office which cut down closing hours for women's dorms and residences one hour each on Friday and Saturday nights, gave up even their time for play.

Some excitement was occasioned by the measure, did not compare, however, with excitement and thrill which swept Ann Arbor at the marriage of Robert Westfall, '42, and Ruth Mary Smith, '43.

CLASS OFFICERS, HARASSED BY HEAVY DUTIES, ALMOST WENT MAD WITH THE INTENSE EXCITEMENT ATTACHED TO THEIR JOBS. SHOWN GOING MAD IN A FLURRY OF BUSY ACTIVITY ARE AGNES CROW, MILLIE RADFORD, AND NORM CALL. THE MISSING MEMBER OF THE QUARTET, JOHN SHAREMET, UNIVERSITY'S ACE SWIMMER, FELT THE STRAIN OF HIS JOB SO MUCH THAT HE WAS ADVISED BY HIS DOCTOR TO TAKE A TRIP TO OHIO STATE TO QUIET HIS NERVES.

MANY A GAY LAUGH WAS PROVIDED THROUGHOUT THE YEAR, BY THE "TERRIBLE THREE" AS THEY WERE AFFECTIONATELY KNOWN TO THEMSELVES. ALL OF THEM ARE CONSIDERED BY MANY AS WRITERS, BUT THEIR CHIEF CLAIM TO CAMPUS DISTINCTION IS THEIR ABILITY AS GOOD NEWSPAPERMEN. FROM MIDDLE TO OUTSIDE, WE SEE JAY MCCORMICK, AND GERRY BURNS, AND JAY MCCORMICK AND EMILE GELE.

KNOWN TO ALL AS NO. 1 CAMPUS FUNNYMAN FOR 1941-42, WILLIAM DAWSON, ACE COMEDIAN, WHEN ASKED TO POSE FOR A PICTURE BY LEER'S PHOTOGRAPHER IN BLACKFACE, SMILED BASHFULLY, SAID, "I DON'T KNOW WHAT I'VE DONE TO DESERVE ALL THIS PUBLICITY," AND POLISHED HIS FORMAL BUCKSKIN MOCCASINS WITH A NERVOUS GESTURE.

DOING THEIR PART IN THE TOUGH BATTLE TO KEEP UNIVERSITY STUDENTS FROM ROAMING THE STREETS IN GANGS, STEALING TIRES AS THEY GO, BOB SIBLEY AND JACK GRADY, DURING THE ENTIRE YEAR, PUT ON AN INTERESTING VENTRILOQUISM ACT AT THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN'S ACE UNION. NOTICE MAN ON KNEE.

"SEE YOU IN THE 'ENSIAN"

Wherever art (a drawing or a photograph) appears in the 1942 Michiganensian a photo-engraved printing plate is required. The quality of a printing plate is determined by how closely the printed page compares to the original drawing or original photograph.

There are 432 pages in this Michiganensian and on most of the pages appear printed impressions made from photo-engraved printing plates. As you thumb through this modern yearbook just pause at some of the reproductions which appeal to you most . . . then remember . . . the photo-engraved printing plates were made by the coterie of craftsmen assembled by the Brophy Salisbury Company in Detroit, Michigan.

IT IS SIGNIFICANT that this wartime Yearbook is, perhaps, the finest ever produced by the University of Michigan. In times of strife and difficulty the fibre, the determination, the will to accomplish and win through, have always strengthened in human beings. The finest works have always been done, the greatest advancements have always come when great travail has stripped away the husks of occupation, of social position and of privilege to leave the field to the useful and the good. In a war of mechanized science the worth of a great University to the cause is so apparent that it is trite to make the assertion. But neither must we lose sight of the values of higher education in warfare merely because we fear repetition of a fact. A yearbook depicting in story and illustration the activities of a contributor to science, literature, and art has its place in war or peace and it is our pleasure to have participated in the production of this book of the University of Michigan.

STUDENT SENATE

Toll of Time Killed Climbs as Rival Parties Battle

TERMED "sole representative body on campus" in blatant Daily election advance, the Student Senate has accomplished much in smoke-filled rooms—it filled them with smoke. Bob Krause, president of the simpering solons, ruled Senate politics with an iron hand encased in a coating of rust. Before attaining Fuehrership, Krause stirred Senate chambers with a labor survey, moved out of fraternity house, made political hives buzz with a speech denouncing Roger Kelly, aspirant to Senate presidency in 1941. Krause was also named Senate treasurer with only one vote, Kelly's, cast against his unanimous choice.

No runaway legislature, Michigan's "Rump Parliament" has distinguished itself by taking thirty minutes debate to decide what meeting it was in, by shelving all business to vote itself gold keys, by soft-pedalling "radical" members who proposed library lighting investigations, student wage surveys, etc. Biggest laugh in last year's comedy of errors was the Senate tag day, signed, sealed, and delivered by the Senate, and then vetoed by the Committee on Student Affairs. Said one Senator, "What the hell right has the Committee on Student Affairs to pass on our measures?" Said another Senator, "Sh-h!"

Senate lily-whites also found a stone wall in attempting to buck Michigan Party steamroller. While Tammany, Kelly-Nash, and Pendergast were destructive in power politics, Michigan Party strategy calls for complete opposition to any and all motions. Through devious channels (oft reported to be smoke signals from Boss Bud Cox's cigarette), Party men whipped in and out of line like a Sunday driver with hysterics.

Senate, originally formed to perpetuate Spring Parley, was in death throes while trying to perpetuate self, and ended by voting itself out of existence.

LEER ON THE NEWS FRONT OF THE WORLD

OPERA GREAT, SAYS CHARLIE HEINEN

Best-publicized of the year's student shows was Mimes' Union Opera, presented in December, general-chairmaned by large, blond, un-aesthetic looking Jim Gormsen, directed by a former Mimes member and actor in the Opera who returned for the sake of sentiment and a $500 salary.

Saved from complete decease by a time-worn but still funny rendition of the hawker-in-the-street act by '42's Woody Block and the ingenious choreography of Dick Strain, Mimes' best act was put on by its publicity director, Don West, who was there every night, kept insisting it was better the third time than the second, said it grew on you, was told so does fungus.

Disregarding losses, the company partied in traditional Mimes style on the last night, charged it up as just another loss, wished it had given the party to the audience instead of the opera.

Bud Cox leaves offices of Inter-Fraternity Council where he has stamped seals of approval on Michigan Party Candidates. Cox, campus Boss Tweed in a dirty shirt, effectively pulls strings behind Michigan Party Student Senators when he is not ineffectively pulling strings behind deficient blueprints.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

Cox has become a myth in Student Senate annals, having been named to Senate posts by three retiring Senators without formality of election. Senatorial courtesy system allows Michigan Party men to "retire" and turn senatorship over to Cox.

Cox rules Senate meetings behind a cloud of cigarette smoke which emits "That's unconstitutional" at five minute intervals. No crusader he, Cox has thrown so many monkey wrenches that he has been investigated by the Committee for the Conservation of Steel Scrap.

DICK SHUEY WAS PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS FOR THE YEAR 1941-42, SHARED A SUITE IN THE UNION WITH INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL.

". . . and so the year of 1942 promises to be one of the most interesting years of all history. I confidently predict that there will be much excitement this year, with much the same confidence with which I predicted that there would be much excitement last year. And just as there will be turmoil in the world's affairs, so will there be turmoil in the Cut Rate Drug Store this month over the special offer that it is making to all its regular customers. You will be able to get a special combination of foot-lotion and hairdress for only 29 cents. And that will be all for tonight."

LEAGUE GROUP HAS HIT ON ITS HANDS IN "MOTHER MARGIE'S CHICKENS"

HIT of the 1941-42 drama season was the Michigan League's presentation of "Mother Margie's Chickens," a drama written and directed by Miss Ethel McCormick of the League. For sincerity of fulfillment of roles, the characters have seldom been surpassed in the history of the American theatre—and the most remarkable thing was the amazing ability of the casting director in her choice of persons to fill the various roles. Every portrayal was so authentic, it seemed that it could scarce be but lifelike.

The plot of the play is essentially simple, concerning a mother who has gone through rather hard times (Margaret Sanford) in the rearing of her children, but who is strengthened in her resolve to bring up her kiddies right by the example set to her by an old friend of the family, a Miss Lloyd (Miss Lloyd). Her family is all daughters—two of whom are social butterflys competing for the same man—two of whom are trying to establish themselves as respectable career girls, and one who has resigned herself to old maidhood and who strongly disapproves of the youngest sister, a flighty young thing who has gone on the stage to the disgrace of the family. How Mother Margie resolves the discordant notes between the various members of the family is the subject of the ace drama. LEER presents a few great pictures to show what we mean.

ANY RESEMBLANCE TO ANY PERSONS LIVING IS STRICTLY COINCIDENTAL, AND IS NOT TO BE TAKEN AS ACCIDENTAL.

MOTHER MARGIE ATTEMPTS TO PACIFY HER YOUNG 'UNS AS MARY AND MARIAN (MARGOT THOM AND HELEN RHODES) SQUABBLE OVER THEIR COMMON BOY-FRIEND, WHO DOES NOT APPEAR IN THE PLAY, BUT WHO IS KNOWN AS THE "HOOSIER AMOUR." ON THE OTHER COUCH, MARTHA AND MABEL (PAT HADLEY AND JEAN HUBBARD) HAVE THEIR OWN LITTLE SQUABBLE, AS MARTHA, WHO IS SOMEWHAT OF A SUCCESS IN HER CAREER CONDESCENDINGLY PATS MABEL ON THE HEAD FOR HAVING CHOSEN AN INFERIOR LOT. MISS LLOYD'S PICTURE BEAMS DOWN BENEVOLENTLY.

THE OLD FAMILY RETAINER (PEGGY POLUMBAUM) LISTENS SYMPATHETICALLY AS MOTHER MARGIE POURS OUT HER HEART AND ORDERS A CHEESE SANDWICH.

THE RESIGNED OLDER SISTER (JANE BAITS), STERN IN HER CONDEMNATION OF MORAL OBLOQUY, SCORNFULLY POINTS AN ACCUSING FINGER AT NANCYBELLE (VEITCH PURDOM) WHO HAS LEFT HOME AND DISGRACED HER FAMILY BY GOING ON THE STAGE.

DENOUEMENT OF THE PLAY COMES WHEN NANCYBELLE INVITES A WILD STAGE FRIEND HOME FOR DINNER (VIRGINIA APPLETON). JENEANE, THE OLDER SISTER IS INFURIATED AND POSITIVELY CREATES A SCENE, WHILE THE BEWILDERED MAIDEN AUNT (LOUISE KEATLEY) OF THE FAMILY LOOKS ON IN AMAZEMENT.

Jane Connell

"She's a killer you'll admit
She's a killer, you'll be bound
If she only would forget
Marcia's in the cold, cold ground."

WITH these words did campus bigwigs patronizingly approve of the lightning career of little Janey Connell. She seen her path, and she followed it, providing a last meteoric spurt to the comet that was her sister. Last report of Miss Connell II had her practicing her broad-jumping in a semi-successful attempt to fill her sister's footsteps.

This month, LEER crusades against dread housing conditions in Ann Arbor, which caused Daily City Editor to move into a W.P.A. outhouse (plus utilities). Housing shortage has caused untold suffering, untold hardship; forced many campus celebrities to set up new residences. Constructive rather than destructive, LEER shows how various U. of M. celebrities have coped with this ace problem.

MEMBER OF THE ACE CAMPUS THESPIAN GROUP—MOTTO, "YOUR HEART MAY BELONG TO DADDY, BUT MINE BELONGS TO DRAMA"—BILL ALTMAN MOVED INTO LAB THEATRE, SCENE OF MANY A HEART-RENDING DEBUT. HIS COMMENT, "IT'S A BEAUTIFUL SHOW."

WILLIAM SLOCUM, PRESIDENT OF MEN'S JUDICIARY COUNCIL, IN CHARGE OF MAINTAINING DECENT CONDUCT AMONG STUDENTS, HAS RECENTLY MOVED INTO THE BELL. OFFICE HOURS—5-12 P.M.

1942—YEAR

A MODERN YEARBOOK

AL OWENS—BUSINESS MANAGER—SMILING, SWEET, AND QUITE DISCREET.

GERRY HEWITT — EDITOR-IN-CHIEF — HIS SMILING FACE AND WINSOME PERSONALITY GAINED HIM MANY NEW FRIENDS DURING 1942.

ROBERT NICKLE—ART EDITOR—HIS MANY NEW IDEAS TOOK THE CAMPUS BY STORM.

This year, America entered the second year of war, and America's press expanded its already high-class facilities to cover the varied fronts of the nation's military efforts. New cables were laid, new correspondents were hired, new and better techniques of war coverage on the various fronts were developed.

OF DESTINY

COVERS THE WAR . . .

WILLIAM DITZ—HIS MANY NEW IDEAS TOOK THE CAMPUS BY STORM.

RAE GUSTAFSON — WOMAN'S BUSINESS MANAGER—STYLISHLY STOUT, BUT WITHAL, A REAL WOMAN.

JEANNE GOUDY—WOMAN'S EDITOR—HER MANY NEW IDEAS TOOK THE CAMPUS BY STORM.

The culmination of the American press' heightened efforts is best shown in the revolutionary methods by which the Michiganensian, photographic supplement to the Michigan Daily, did its part. This issue of Leer shows the staff of this great publication at work and at play.

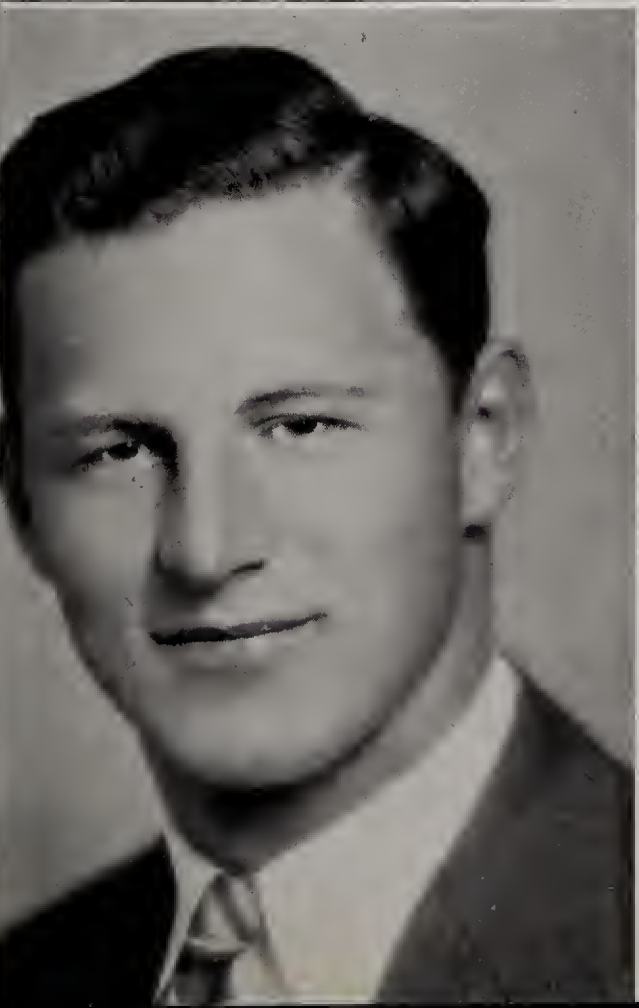
Men of Science—Men of Destiny—Men of Hygiene 101—these are the fine, brave, strong heroes and fighters who go on in a world of chaos and trouble and horrible upset, with their great battle against time and Bursley. On, on, on!

Up against greater odds than were faced even by Reed or Pasteur or Banting, they are not daunted by their dull normal classification; brain cells are none of their worry. It is these noble men who have done science its greatest service of the century. They have proven the real worth of the rote method of learning.

SCIENCE

TOP ROW—STILL ELIGIBLE, AL PIEL OWES ALL TO HYGIENE—STILL ELIGIBLE, JIM GALLES OWES ALL TO HYGIENE 101—AFTER TWO SEMESTERS OF INELIGIBILITY, HYGIENE 101 WAS A QUIET, QUIET HAVEN FOR JOHNNY GILLIS. ROW 2—STILL ELIGIBLE, WAYNE STILLE OWES ALL TO HYGIENE 101. ROW 3—STILL ELIGIBLE, GUS SHAREMET OWES ALL TO HYGIENE 101—STILL ELIGIBLE, BOB INGALLS OWES ALL TO HYGIENE 101—AL DANN FOUND HYGIENE 101, FOUND THE REAL AL DANN.



AFTER PARTY STARTS, THE GROUP SPLITS UP INTO SEVERAL LITTLE CLIQUES. HERE THE WILD PARTY IS SHOWN, DAN HUYETT, EVELYN WRIGHT, JIM COLLINS AND LOU CARPENTER. NOTICE THE GIRL ON THE LAP.

STEWARD OF THE AFFAIR, EMILE GELE, IS SHOWN HERE IN-VITING GRACE MILLER TO HIS APARTMENT. EMILE HAS ONE OF THE COUNTRY'S FINEST COLLECTIONS OF ETCHINGS AND HOT BUTTERED RUM.

HALE LOOKS ON, AS DOE-LINE GIRLS WATCH PARTY'S PROCEEDING. NOTICE THE WOLF ON THE FLOOR.

HIGHLIGHT OF EVERY PARTY IS THE CLEVER LITTLE GOSSIP SHEET TURNED OUT. HALE GETS RIGHT INTO THING'S SPIRIT; TAKES ACTIVE CHARGE.

Leer Goes to a Party

Highlight of the Michigan social season this year or any year for any of the fortunate who receive invitations is the party (nightly except Sunday) given at the Michigan Daily from approximately 4 p.m. to 2 a.m., attended by a select group of students; product is a daily paper which is best known for the fine quality of its corset advertisements.

Leer decided to depart from its usual method of covering the parties which it attends and selected one of the less known members of the number which was invited for the evening, spotted him at his home where he prepared for the Babylonian revelry and nameless orgies ahead by stuffing his pockets with copy pencils and nickels for the coke machine, cleaned his teeth for a novelty. That man was Hale Champion.

HALE PREPARES FOR THE PARTY. SWANK DAILITES ARE SMOOTH ENOUGH TO SCORN ORDINARY CONVENTIONS, MAKE A FETISH OF TIELESSNESS.

THE TORPEDOES,
FULL SPEED AHEAD!

INTELLECTUAL ACTIVITY IS NOT PARTICULARLY DISCOURAGED. MEN SHOWN ABOVE ARE MOSTLY ELIGIBLE BACHELORS; THEIR ELIGIBILITY STOPS AT THAT POINT.

AFTER THE PARTY, HALE DROPS INTO THE GARGOYLE, HASHERY FAMED FOR ITS OLD WORLD ATMOSPHERE, RUSSIAN INTROVERSION.

No He He

Dear Sir:

In your last issue you mentioned something about my son, Jack being the proud father of a baby girl. This is incorrect. My son, Jack, is a baby girl. I am enclosing picture.

Jack Grady's Father
Yours truly,

Ed.—Due to lack of space, we are printing Miss Grady's picture in our next issue of Co-ed, which will be on sale at your newsstand next Friday.

No He She

Dear Sir:

I noted in your last issue that you printed you stated that my daughter, Bobby Curdes, was born a blue-eyed spanking baby boy of 10 pounds. I am enclosing picture (see above) which proves conclusively that my daughter is a girl.

Yours truly
Jack Grady

No Nothing She

Dear Sir:

I am enclosing a picture of one of my dearer friends which I am also sending to the Detroit Free Press, the Cleveland Plain Dealer and the Detroit Times for immediate release. It is part of a publicity campaign for Joan Reutter, Michigan's best female singer, and I think it will be of interest to your readers, since it shows Miss Reutter singing gaily. I dare you to print this picture.

Yours truly
Will Sapp

Ed. Note—See cover.

Shown in characteristic pose, Samson-wigged Allan Axelrod and cacophonous-cackling Kay Ruddy ponder one of their numerous imponderables. No introvert he, Axelrod first achieved fame when he refused lucrative offer to ride down State Street on homecoming day as Lady Godiva. Axelrod, noted abstainer, is occasionally Garg-Oiled, shuns women, chews hair in meditation, lives alone in custom-built West Quad garret, is authority on Joyce.

Ruddy—Chi O, Daily Women's Pageep, and JGPlaywright with Axelrod — turns a ready wit and winning smile to good advantage. If Hitler has more enemies, it's news to us. Gives lie to all rumors of prospective nuptiallance with Jack Grady.
